

City gives Teamsters final offer

If Teamsters Local 214 and the City of Romulus ever reach an agreement on a contract, it will have to be without the services of Councilman Jimmie Raspberry.

Raspberry yesterday said that he would no longer serve as council's representative to the negotiations "because I found it fruitless."

The Teamsters have been trying to iron out a contract with the city for the past two years. They have agreed upon provisions offered by a state mediator for resolving the impasse, however, it now appears that the city doesn't want to abide by the term of the mediator's fact finder's report.

Council voted two weeks ago to ask Raspberry to represent it in the negotiations. He told The Romulus Roman last week he feels that it would serve no purpose to continue playing that role.

Raspberry said his first step was to ask the finance and personnel directors to meet with him and discuss what position the city was in financially and how many employees would be affected by the contract. The three met for three hours at the City Hall and Raspberry came to the conclusion that the city could agree to the terms of the Fact Finder's report.

He pointed out that he was willing to recommend that the city offer 25 cents across-the-board raises in the first and second year of the contract and urge for a "salary freeze" in the third year of the contract. Although the package would cost the city approximately $109,000, Raspberry said that there were monies "available because we didn't fill personnel vacancies when people quit and also had in the budget $86,000."

"I felt there would be no strain in the city's present operations or its economic picture," Raspberry continued. "We were to meet with the mayor and see what he had to offer. We wanted to know if he had any objections and if he didn't, then we would take it to the council."

"We had everything programmed and we were right down to ending this," Raspberry said, then the mayor came up at the last meeting and offered the employees a 30 cents per year for two years plus a $300 bonus. I felt that he had made his move, so the ball is in their (the union's) court."

The Chamber is also planning to issue a city business map during "Michigan Week". For advertising space, contact Brueck at 941-8700.

Rush not in V-B board race

No, ex-Romulus councilman Edward Rush is not seeking the vacancy on the Van Buren Township Board, as it appeared to be in last week's edition.

"No, I'm not a candidate for political office," Rush said, "and please tell the people so."

The mix-up occurred apparently because of a typographical error. The candidate who is seeking the job is Ed Busch, a Van Buren Township resident.

MERC opens ballots today

The Michigan Employment Security Commission will be counting ballots today to determine whether the Van Buren Police Department wants as a bargaining agent the United Auto Workers Local 157.

In December of 1981, 15 patrolmen asked that the UAW step in and become their union representative. The results of the balloting won't be revealed immediately, according to a MERC spokesman "not until both sides are notified first."

Harrison, trustee, Sarah Riley, Sgt. of Arms, John Lewkowicz, vice-president, Dennis Davidson, director of Parks and Recreation; Edna Maciejewski, financial secretary and Dorothy Icenogle, acting secretary and trustee.

Refuse to fund it

Commissioners kill 'test probe'

By a vote of 12-3 with eight abstentions, the Wayne County Board of Commissioners has denied funding for a committee formed to investigate alleged irregularities in the County Civil Service system, thereby causing resignation of one of the committee co-chairmen.

The board last week voted against a proposed $6000 appropriation for providing tapes and transcripts from a separate investigation already underway by the Civil Service Commission itself. According to the defeated proposal, funds for the Board's committee investigation would have been taken from the Civil Service budget.

Committee Co-chairman Arthur M. Carter resigned from the committee immediately following the vote. With a majority of 14 votes needed to approve the proposal, Carter said, "In light of this, it is clear that the Board is not serious about conducting this investigation."

Although Civil Service has been conducting its own investigation since November when claims of favoritism for an employee in the Dept. of Public Works first arose, some commissioners feel that an independent investigation is needed nevertheless.

"If you ask Civil Service to investigate its own department, that's like asking a bank robber to investigate the bank he just robbed," said Commissioner George F. Killeen. Killeen is the remaining co-chairman of the Board's investigating committee.

In the irregularities charged by the American Federation of State, City and Municipal Employees, purportedly a privileged employee had access to the test for a $19,000 Wastewater Specialist job about a week before it was officially administered.

Paul G. Citkowski, another member of the committee and one of the two who voted against the appropriation, said he thought it "improper and inappropriate to bill an individual, department or organization for an investigation before the investigation is completed," Citkowski said further:

"This would give us the appearance of predetermining guilt. Instead, we should fund the investigation from Board funds, and if we are able to substantiate any wrongs only then should we bill the cost of the investigation to the guilty parties."

ties."

Among other matters considered at the meeting, the Board referred to its General Government Committee a proposal instructing the County Office of Corporation Counsel to take legal action voiding a six-year contract between the County Road Commission and the newly-formed Association of Road Commission Administrators, the top management echelon of the Road Commission staff.

Killeen, the sponsor of that resolution, is also party in a lawsuit dismissed from Circuit Court last week which sought to void the contract and dismantle the association.

Panel suggests pay hikes for 3 top city officials

The Romulus Officers' Compensation Commission has recommended that the mayor, city clerk and treasurer receive salary hikes, according to their report.

The report states that the commission will recommend, based on the new data offered by the Michigan Municipal League, that the mayor's salary be raised to $27,000 as of January 1, 1981 and that salary be further increased to $28,350 for the second year, effective January 1, 1983.

Mayor William Oakley's present salary is $22,680, and the pay raise was recommended by member commissions to bring salaries in line... "with the different cities compatible with Romulus and the salaries paid in those cities."

"Averages were compared with the current salaries paid to the elected officials and it was found that Romulus was below average in salaries paid to the Mayor, Clerk and Treasurer."

The commission then went on to recommend that both the City Clerk and the City Treasurer be paid $20,500, effective Jan. 1, 1982 and that that figure be increased to $21,500 for the second year, effective Jan. 1, 1983.

However, members of the city council and the mayor pro tem will remain at their present rates, the compensation commission report stated. It would not recommend increases for those elected offices at this time.

Although the Compensation Commission may make recommendations, it will be up to the members of council, however, to approve the recommendation.

Council make chose to reject the commissioners' report and hold the salary levels at what they are presently.

The mayor is presently making $22,680, while the city treasurer and city clerk each earn $18,317. Council members are paid $3,600 each per year, while the mayor pro tem is awarded $4,100 for her services.

Goodbye 210

SEMTA cuts city services

Has the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority rescinded its decision to stop servicing the city of Romulus?

It appears so.

Earlier this month SEMTA officials announced that they would stop bus service to the city and eliminate several lines because of drastic financial cutbacks.

However, Gary W. Krause, acting general manager of SEMTA, in a written statement to Mayor William Oakley, said that SEMTA would provide some local service.

"I sympathize with your concerns about the adverse impact on Romulus residents from the proposed elimination of Route 210," Krause wrote. "You may be interested in knowing that under our current service modification plan, SEMTA Route 809 - the Michigan Avenue Park and Ride - which now begins at Metro Place Mall in Wayne will be extended to Romulus to serve many of the passengers who presently use Route 210."

Krause stressed that SEMTA's problems stem from lack of funding and that the entire public transit services in this region is in jeopardy.

"SEMTA is having severe financial difficulties, difficulties which could lead to an approximately $40 million short-fall next year," Krause continued.

"With our federal funding being phased out in two years and our local funding in jeopardy of being discontinued, it appears that our only hope for maintaining service near current levels - and certainly our only hope for service near current expansion - is to find a new source of revenue."

Krause concluded by saying that "without a new source of funding, all public transit services in this region face the threat of massive cutbacks over the next few years. We are obviously trying very hard to avert this situation and are very much devising alternatives funding strategies to pursue. We would like very much to discuss this issue with you and/or your council."

Detoured

Like many motorists, the driver of the vehicle above had his problems getting to work on time yesterday morning. Dangerous and icy road conditions throughout most of the area slowed down drivers. However, unlike most of the other motorists, the one above skid-ded on the icy pavement and spun into the snow banks. Police said the driver was uninjured. Only his pride was hurt. Police also said that there were a rash of accidents in Southeastern Michigan yesterday, but locally none were serious.

County reapportionment comes under attack

Proposed 'Holley Plan' unfair to suburbs, critic says

By SUE BACHAND
ANP Staff Writer

Tom Stillings suspects he's being robbed.

He also thinks his neighbors in Canton and throughout Western Wayne County are being victimized — and he's not too happy about the situation.

What's being taken from Stillings, he claims, is his right to participate in local government — in particular, the effectiveness of his vote is being undermined and he intends to let people know what happened.

Stillings, 34, had long been aware of problems with the apportionment of voting districts in Wayne County. When the recent census figures indicated that reapportionment was in order, he decided to take some action.

"If the voters were thrilled with our existing county bureaucrats, we wouldn't have needed a new charter," Stillings noted. In an effort, he said, to participate and to attempt to aid out-county residents from personal experience, Stillings began work on a reapportionment plan for local districts which would, he hoped, satisfy the criteria set forth by state and protect the voting rights and area concerns of neighborhoods within the districts.

He worked more than 100 hours to that end on the physical preparation of a districting plan which would allow local districts to remain just that — local. He scoured country records for necessary information and enlisted the aid of several of his friends to help him locate necessary data. He really only tried, he said, to be fair to everyone.

"My plan was more fair in that it considers all the state criteria and basically presents the concept of public institutions and goals in common. I just feel that wherever possible, people should be allowed to voice their opinions on the issues through a common government representative," Stillings said.

With the plan the county adopted, that doesn't happen, he contends.

According to published deadlines from the office of County Clerk James Killeen, the commission working on the reapportionment would accept plans until Jan. 12. Stillings claimed he worked feverishly to complete his reapportionment plan before that time, but that he could not present it personally to Killeen as his business schedule required him to be out of state on the deadline date.

He sent an emissary to deliver his plan to the county clerk in person — but his hours of effort, planning, counting, districting and redistricting were in vain.

Killeen, claims Stillings, wouldn't even accept his plan for consideration, offering no excuse, only a flat refusal.

"The Wayne County Apportionment Commission was formed under guidelines which required the solicitation of public input.

"Killeen refused to even present my plan to the commission and that to me is the worst of all possible situations because one individual is dictating who is going to participate in the political process," Stillings said.

"I'm a voter, a taxpayer and a citizen of Wayne County and I'm entitled to present my plan to that commission. Even if my plan had been presented and rejected, that's what I'm entitled to," he added.

Stillings is equally angry about the plan that the commission adopted on the same day his efforts were rejected. "They actually went ahead and adopted this Holley plan on the very day they had prescribed as the deadline for public input."

And Stillings has some strong words for the plan the commission has adopted — none of them favorable. "The Holley plan fragments local city groups and removes the ability for neighborhood concerns to be presented to one common government representative. In case of Western Wayne County, nobody will be able to go to the County Commissioner as a representative of a clear majority of opinion. We have now been divided into small, splintered groups and this plan effectively removes the political power of local residents. What it does is steal their vote, we no longer have the one man one vote concept," Stillings said.

"Maybe Mr. Holley is not familiar with the out-county area. I consider his plan to be a catastrophe for this area. It may be excellent for Detroit, however," Stillings added.

And on that subject, Stillings is ready to make some strong charges about the methods used and the interests served with the adoption of the Holley plan.

"In my opinion, there are existing commissioners who's voting districts are being preserved by the gerrymandering (unusual division of voters) that went on — Mr. Killeen's brother is a county commissioner, I believe," Stillings claimed.

"I suspect that they have preserved a voting block to benefit the City of Detroit at the expense of the rest of the county," he added, although he admits that even his plan gives the bulk of commission seats to districts that are part of Detroit.

"The importance of this reapportionment is that with the new county charter this will create an executive body that will control all operations of the county including the road commission. By allowing this kind of juggling, we've given up control until the next reapportionment which will be at the next census, maybe 10 years from now.

"We are allowing someone else to control our destiny until that time," Stillings said.

The steelbroker believes that the whole issue of reapportionment got very little publicity and that while Detroit presented a plan, and the Democrats and Republicans each were judicious in presenting their views, "nobody wanted to find out what the taxpayers wanted."

"The issue is — I was denied input into the plan. I got mad and I started writing letters. I don't know what to do, other than let everybody who pays taxes and votes know how civil servants react to someone who tries to participate in the government

"I would hope Attorney General Frank Kelley would pay some attention and look into the matter," Stillings added.

"Maybe if this gets some attention the state legislature will rethink the reapportionment process and change the composition of the reapportionment commission to eliminate the bias of political parties and people already entrenched in the existing structure," Stillings concluded.

County Clerk Killeen remained unavailable for comment.

Senator Faust says report doubts Project ELF's safety

Doubts about the viability and safety of the U.S. Navy's proposed Project ELF, to be built in Michigan's Upper Peninsula, are raised in an independent scientific report released today by Senate Majority Leader William Faust (D-Westland).

"This report, compiled by the Legislative Office of Science Advisor (LOSA), expresses concerns about Project ELF that parallel my own," Faust said. "Those concerns are: Is Project ELF needed? If it is built, will it work? And what effects will the project have on human health and the environment?"

Project ELF is an extremely low frequency transmitter and antenna system which the U.S. Navy wants to build in Michigan's Upper Peninsula to permit communication with submerged submarines. The major conclusions of the LOSA study regarding Project ELF are:

o The actual performance of Project ELF cannot be precisely predicted for a number of reasons. These include a lack of knowledge of the geologic rock formations in the Upper Peninsula which could cause disturbances in Project ELF's antenna system, and fluctuating atmospheric and ionospheric conditions which could affect Project ELF's signal strength. The report also states that Project ELF's radio signal could be jammed or interfered with by an enemy committed to that purpose.

o While slight though unharmed effects of extremely low frequency radiation on rhesus monkeys have been demonstrated, there is a scarcity of data on the biological effects of very long-term exposure to extremely low frequency radiation. The report also cites a study that may be relevant to possible biological effects of extremely low frequency radiation. The study suggests that children in Colorado living near high-current power lines may have a two to three times higher probability of contracting leukemia than do children living in areas of low-current power lines.

o Project ELF could be located elsewhere than Michigan's Upper Peninsula, and even may be unnecessary.

The report states that the proposed Project ELF system is considerably different in size and design from previous U.S. Navy proposals, and "given the altered requirements, it is apparent that other locations could be reconsidered." One of those locations would be an existing antenna facility in Wisconsin, which the report suggests would be a "more cost-effective and quickly constructed alternative" to the Michigan Project ELF site.

As for the need for Project ELF, the report says a new blue-green laser system could provide a similar submarine communications link by the 1990s and possibly sooner. Under the proposed schedule, Michigan's Project ELF would not be fully operational until at least 1987.

If plans for building Project ELF in Michigan proceed, the report recommends that:

o An independent committee of experts be appointed to monitor construction and operation of the system.

o A 1977 commitment by the U.S. Navy to the State of Michigan to shutdown Project ELF if harmful biological effects are discovered should be extended to cover all other negative effects unforeseen at this time.

"The questions and doubts raised by this report, plus the fact that an average of 82 percent of Upper Peninsula residents surveyed in 1975 and 1976 opposed this kind of project, reinforce my belief that Project ELF should not be permitted to be constructed in Michigan," Faust said. Faust added that public opposition to Project ELF remained overwhelmingly high at a public hearing conducted in Marquette last November by the Senate Administration and Rules Committee.

Faust said he has forwarded a copy of the LOSA report to Governor Milliken, and urges the governor to play an active role in the decision-making process regarding ELF. The governor has previously stated that he is waiting for recommendations from the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) and the Michigan Environmental Review Board (MERB) before taking a position on ELF.

Faust will also testify regarding Project ELF at a meeting of the MERB on Monday, February 22. The meeting will begin at 9:30 a.m. in the Manty Conference Room of the Department of Public Health, 3500 North Logan, Lansing.

Out-Wayne county services is seeking drivers

Out-Wayne County Human Services Inc., which supplies hot noontime meals for senior citizens in Western Wayne County is in need of drivers to deliver meals Monday through Friday to homebound seniors.

Home delivered meals are available to seniors, who are unable to make it to area nutrition sites for the daily meals and who meet the required qualifications.

According to Ellen McCollum, project director, it is becoming increasingly difficult to find drivers available at lunchtime Monday through Friday to deliver the meals.

Not only must the drivers be available at noontime, they also must have their own cars and be capable of doing light lifting. Ms. McCollum added that drivers should have an understanding of the needs of seniors.

Drivers are required to deliver the meals personally to each participant on his or her route and be conscious of safe food handling by delivering the food as quickly as possible.

Meals are picked up at the drivers' assigned nutrition site, and drivers are reimbursed at 23 cents per mile from the nutrition site to the delivery sites and back.

Persons interested in helping with the Home Delivered Meal Program can contact Human Services at 422-2602 between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The monthly menu — March 1 through April 9 — at nutrition sites serviced by Human Services Inc. will include:

March 1 — beef stew with carrots, potatoes, broccoli, biscuit,

plums and milk;

March 2 — turkey tertrazzini, tomatoes, celery, pineapple-cheese salad, white bread, sherbert and milk;

Romulus child 'loves the Lions'

Pros visit leukemia stricken boy at hospital

To most people, professional football means crasing shoulder pads and explosive grunts of energy.

For one third grade student at St. Aloysius school in Romulus, pro football means a strong, compassionate arm around his shoulder and a warm voice saying "hello!"

As part of Super Bowl week, seven former Detroit Lions visited the hematology clinic at Children's Hospital in Detroit. One of the patients visited was 8-year-old Robi Brothers from Romulus. Three and a half years ago, Robi contracted a dreaded childhood disease, acute lymphoblastic leukemia.

Fantastic strides in medical science have allowed Robi to survive, and it was his and other patient's courage that the former Lions had come to witness.

To increase awareness of leukemia, the youthful patients took the brave and muscular veterans of pro football on a simulated, out-patient treatment visit.

As the ex-Lions were introduced to patients and staff, their names brought back exciting memories of Detroit gridiron greatness. Joe Schmidt, Lem Barney, Mike Lucci and Gary Lowe represented bruising defensive squads of old. Offensive standouts Terry Barr, Nick Pietrosanti and Ron Kramer enhanced the legendary status of the Lion entourage.

It was Robi's job to guide Terry Barr on a typical clinic visit, a visit that Robi has taken weekly for 3½ years. In order to combat the deadly disease, Robi's examination includes a weigh-in, temperature reading, finger-prick blood test, bone marrow and spinal tap, chemotherapy and radiation. The former players did not actually receive tests, but they were rigged up and positioned for the multitude of examinations.

Terry Barr was scheduled for a blood test. Robi could hardly contain himself as the former University of Michigan star held out his gigantic hand and prepared for the sudden jab of the needle. Later, with a gleam in his eye, Robi confessed that his most exciting moment was sensing Terry Barr's fear of the always painful finger prick.

Ron Kramer, in his years of playing end, was known for his bone-jarring contact. As he prepared to receive a simulated spinal tap, his curled up, horizontal form was strangely reminiscent of one of his famous cross-body blocks.

The hospital tour was one of several events sponsored by the National Football League Alumni Association in conjunction with Super Bowl week. Four youth-oriented charities benefitted: Children's Leukemia Foundation of Michigan; American Diabetes Association; Hemophilia Foundation of Michigan and Arthritis Foundation.

The National Football League Alumni Association is an organization of retired players which supports youth programs nationwide. The Association's motto is "Caring for Kids". Seven former Detroit sports stars lived up to that motto for a day and created lasting memories for Robi Brothers and many other children who are stars in their own dramatic way.

All aboard to Washington D.C.

ANP to organize capital tour, scheduled for March 26-28

What can be better than a trip to Washington D.C. in March?

That's what The Associated Newspapers is offering its readers next month — to join us in our inaugural trip to the nation's capital.

When in Washington, you will be able to go through the Capitol Building on a guided tour and also visit the White House. Obviously, we can't assure you that the President will be there.

However, tour guide, Gene Wertz, says that you will be able to visit Arlington National Cemetery where Mr. Wertz will lay a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldiers in honor of the men of Wayne County who lost their lives defending our country.

You will also be able to visit and see the Kennedy grave sites, the Iwo Jima Statue, the Lincoln Memorial, Jefferson Memorial, visit the Church of the Immaculate Conception and the Washington Cathedral. You will have a drive to Mt. Vernon where your admission to home and grounds is covered in cost of the tour.

And there will be more interesting historic sites and visits to the famous Smithsonian Institution.

The tour will be organized during the last week of March, the weekend of March 26, 27th and 28 and there is a $343 (double occupancy) and a $380 (single occupancy) charge. That price tag will include all of the following:

Two nights at Westpark Hotel, Arlington Virginia — the hotel has a heated indoor swimming pool, game room, gift shoppe; and is located near Tyson's Corner Center, fourth largest shopping mall in the country.

Also included is the airline fare via Northwest Airlines, baggage handling, tips, three days of sight-seeing, all meals each day with the exception of lunch on Sunday.

If you're interested in making this historic trip, contact Gene Wertz at The Associated Newspapers during regular business hours at 729-4000.

'The winner'

First grader Billy Timmermann will have $25 to spend when the circus comes to town thanks to his artistic ability. Billy, age 7, shown here with his teacher, Sharon Popek, (at left) and Wick School principal, Richard Goode (at left) was declared the winner by the Shrine Circus Committee who judged its Circus Poster Contest for grades one and two, throughout the metropolitan Detroit area. Billy will receive $25 and also six tickets to the circus. He also will be made up as a clown and will be invited to participate in a performance. Lucky and talented Billy is the son of Denise Harvey Timmermann of Romulus and Harold Timmermann of Westland. Billy's classmates also wanted to get into the act — as everyone usually does — so they got their picture taken (below) when ANP chief photographer showed up to snap the winner. From left to right in the front row are Amy Buchanan, Latricia Zirkner, Heather Varesi, David Svacha, Jeannie Rhoton, Heather Dunavan, Ryan McLain, and Jimmy Hardy. In the middle row are, from left, Mary Lloyd, Bobbie Jo Lanier, Rachael Hurst, Dawn Smith, Melissa Hathcox, Lori Ann Cook, Terri Crowder, and Nicole Harvey; back row are Tim Tackett, Stacey Brown, Jeff Blanton, Brian Molenda, James Wood, John Mercer, Billy Timmermann, Leroy Prince, Timmy Check and Eric Marcum. Standing in the back row is a proud and smiling teacher, Mrs. Sharon Popek.

Carbon monoxide poisoning victims

Young area couple reported in 'critical condition'

A young area couple were reported in critical condition at University of Michigan Hospital where they were rushed last Wednesday by Belleville rescue units after they were discovered inside their car parked in a closed garage.

Sgt. Willard Docktar of the Belleville police department said that the young man and woman, both 24, are the apparent victims of carbon monoxide poisoning.

Sgt. Docktar said that two police officers, Robert Dawson, and Richard Wall, may have saved the victims' lives by applying lifesaving cardiopulmonary resuscitation until help arrived.

The man was taken to Wayne County General Hospital, then rushed to U of M Hospital for treatment in a hyperbaric chamber. The chamber helps pump out the monoxide poisoning in the body.

The young lady is on a life-support system and is also in critical condition.

Doctors at the hospital refused to further comment on their patients' ordeals.

"Without the extensive rescue work that our officers had applied," Sgt. Docktar said, "these two would have been in a lot worse shape. It's everyone's opinion that these two would have died if it were not for the efforts of our officers."

Sgt. Docktar said that the two were inside the J & J Gulf gas station on Main Street. The gas station is owned by the young man's father.

Continuum Center to host 'Feeling Good' workshop

Depression vs. Feeling Good is the intriguing title of a one-day workshop being presented by Oakland University's Continuum Center, March 13. Feeling low about yourself and your personal life for days at a time is one of the most common problems in today's unsettling world. However, depression does not need to be an ongoing part of life, a spokesman said.

Shirley Aune, M.A., who has a private counseling practice, as well as being a member of the Continuum Center staff, will be the workshop leader. Her goal for this workshop is to assist you in controlling your moods by specific techniques that are easy to use and have been proven to be highly effective.

The fee for Depression vs. Feeling Good is $35, which includes lunch. Workshop hours are 9 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. March 13 at the Continuum Center. To register, or for additional information, phone the Center at 377-3033. Pre-registration is required.

Looking for help

Wayne grocer Samir Salah is back on the job despite suffering the after effects of the armed robbery of his party store in Wayne last December. Salah is spearheading a drive to establish a Secret Witness program in Wayne that would offer rewards for information leading to the arrest of those involved in violent crimes. City and police officials plan to meet with local merchants to discuss such a proposal in the near future — ANP photo by Chief Photographer Lothar Konietzko

"Kill him!"

The two armed bandits had handcuffed their victim and laid him on the floor behind the cash register to await his fate. One quick pull of the trigger seemed the best way to cover their identities.

"Please don't kill me," pleaded the party store owner to the unmasked thieves, a cold handgun pressed against his face. "I have three children, and I want to see them grow up. You have the money, isn't that enough?"

It was 10:30 a.m., Dec. 3, 1981. But for Samir Salah, it might as well have been yesterday.

Salah, known simply as "Sam" by his customers at Dave's Party Store in Wayne, has never fully recovered from that ordeal, even though he somehow escaped with his life. The feelings of fear, helplessness and yes, anger too, persist.

"I've been a grocer 24 years, and the thought of being held up had crossed my mind," Sam admitted last week. "The side effects are worse than I ever imagined. Being treated like a dog and seeing how life means nothing to some... well, the whole thing has affected me mentally."

"Whenever I watch TV and a scene comes on that involves guns, I am terrified," he added. "It shocks the hell out of me. And then there are the nightmares."

To date the Wayne Police Department has not apprehended the two thugs who changed Sam's life. Also unresolved is the Jan. 3 shooting of an employee of the Dali Market in Wayne, according to Public Safety Director Ray LeCorno.

These incidents have caused Sam along with a number of party store and local Class C liquor license holders to re-evaluate their safety and suggest programs that could offer some protection.

Sam's proposal? A Secret Witness Program that would provide monetary rewards for information leading to the arrest of criminals who burglarize or attack Wayne merchants.

Last month various Wayne businessmen discussed with LeCorno ways to deter and solve crimes of armed robbery and violence. The Wayne City Council and LeCorno then agreed to meet with all Wayne merchants to explore the possibility of establishing a locally based Secret Witness format (no date has yet been set for such a session).

"Any person under the gun loses control of his mind and memory," Sam claimed. "People must work together with the police to help those who need help. I have no grudge against the men who robbed me. There are a lot of desperate people out there — society pushes them to crime in many cases."

'Kill him'

Store owner recalls day gunmen robbed his store

"Somebody knows who commits these crimes but they're afraid to go to the authorities. Our police do a good job but a Secret Witness plan would be a plus. After all, money talks."

Public Safety Director LeCorno, who has endorsed the concept of a local Secret Witness program with proper controls, reported that 24 armed robberies had been committed in Wayne since 1979, including 10 at party stores. Of the 18 armed burglaries in 1980-81, nine were closed by arrest and weapons were fired in only two of the crimes, the director noted.

"Our records don't reflect any more armed crimes than other communities," said LeCorno. "Of course, even one crime is serious enough. But it isn't like people are coming into Wayne and blowing people away."

Sam Salah hopes that a drive by the city and merchants can raise funds that will add another city motto to the existing "It's Great to Live in Wayne," namely "It's Safe to Live in Wayne." Eventually, he envisions other communities setting up their own Secret Witness projects.

The options, he fears, are less than pleasant.

"As a last resort I could surround myself with glass and work out of a cage," declared the 44-year-old grocer. "But who wants it to come to that? I did not come here from the Christian city of Ramallah in 1957 to die because of a gun. I love this country and the beautiful citizens of this community but we must not wait until someone is killed."

"A merchant should be psychologically happy because the community is his family. If the business people are afraid or must work out of glassed cages, that reflects on the community. Real estate values decrease when people feel it may be unsafe to move in."

In addition to Secret Witness aid, the veteran Wayne businessman — he's operated Dave's Party Store on Wayne Road for over 15 years — favors strict control of handguns, especially following his unforgettable experience last December.

"That Thursday morning my prayers were answered," he recalled. "Life was given by God to be taken only by God... not handguns."

When Wayne-County Community School District opened up its impressive vocational education complex recently, on hand for the ceremonies from Van Buren was Haggerty Elementary principal Doug Brown (at left) who is chitchatting here with Dr. Timothy Dyer, Super-

'Grace period'

Selective Service extends registration deadline

Director of Selective Service Thomas K. Turnage announced today that young men who were required to have registered with the Selective Service System before Jan. 8, 1982, but who failed to do so, will be granted a grace period in which to register that will extend through Feb. 28, 1982.

During that time, these men may register without fear of prosecution for late registration.

The announcement implements President Reagan's statement of Jan. 7, in which the President endorsed the continuation of registration and provided for a grace period for those who had previously failed to register. The President made his decision based on the findings of the Military Manpower Task Force that peacetime registration will save the United States about six weeks time in mobilizing its manpower in an emergency.

President Reagan also reaffirmed his commitment to meeting peacetime military manpower needs without a draft.

After Feb. 28, and after identifying the names of those persons who registered during the grace period, Selective Service will carry out a program of full compliance with the registration law. The Department of Justice, in coordination with the Selective Service System, will initiate appropriate enforcement action. This will include action against persons whose names were referred by Selective Service to the Department of Justice for possible criminal prosecution prior to Jan. 8, in the event those persons fail to register during the grace period.

All young men born since Jan. 1, 1960 who have attained age 18 are required to register at any U.S. Post Office. Men born in 1964 are now registering as they reach their eighteenth birthday — 30 days before or after it.

Director Turnage said: "With the removal of any lingering doubts as to the future of the registration program, I am confident that the young men of registration age will comply with the law. They are a responsible group — 6.6 million of them have already registered. I'm sure that those who haven't will act as responsibly as their peers and register during the grace period."

Registration is a simple process. A man fills out a form at any U.S. Post Office.

Court halts redistricting implementation

A three-judge panel of the State Court of Appeals has ordered the Wayne County Apportionment Commission to submit plans, minutes, census data and justification for its carving up of a number of out-county communities, by Feb. 26, as the result of two petitions filed last week by the cities of Dearborn, Dearborn Heights and Westland.

This temporarily halts implementation of the so-called Holley Redistricting Plan, approved by the Apportionment Commissioners January 12th, until the Appeals Court's three-judge panel has had an opportunity to review the cases and reach an opinion, a court spokesman explained.

"Of 26 reapportionment petitions filed," the spokesman added, "only two — Delta and Jackson Counties — have been completed and both ordered their respective Apportionment Commissions to redo their plans. Because of the circumstances," the spokesman continued, "it is expected Wayne County's review will go before the panel as quickly as possible following the submission of information February 26th."

The three Appeals Court judges, Robert Danhof, Glenn Allen and Michael Cavanagh, in their order of Feb. 16, have required the five Apportionment Commissioners to submit information concerning four issues:

(1) — Justification of all population variances from equality, no matter how small, in each district of the adopted plan.

(2) — A complete set of census material as provided to the Apportionment Commission by the Secretary of State's office.

(3) — A complete set of minutes of all meetings of the Commission together with a copy of the plan adopted as well as copies of all other plans submitted for consideration

(and to tell what they should consist of).

(4) — A written reply to any additional issues in the petitions for review.

Mayor John B. O'Reilly of Dearborn filed the first petition with the Appeals Court February 11 followed by a joint petition submitted by Justine Barnes, City of Westland Councilwoman; and Donald Bishop, Mayor of Dearborn Heights.

Wayne County Commissioners William Runco (Dearborn/Dearborn Heights) and Kay Beard, representing parts of Dearborn Heights and Inkster, pressed their communities for court action soon after announcement of the Holley plan acceptance, asserting that the plan unfairly divided their communities.

Mrs. Beard was particularly outspoken at an earlier press conference, charging that the Apportionment Commission had railroaded the Holley plan through in five minutes time without taking note of other proposals being prepared for their consideration.

Apportionment Commissioners include James R. Killeen, county clerk; Raymond Wojtowicz, county treasurer; William L. Cahalan, county prosecutor; Michael Legg, representing the Republican Party and Hubert L. Holley, the Democratic Party. It was Holley's third plan that was ultimately approved.

Romulus' Wilkerson is still looking for winning combo

Some area team is going to beat Ypsilanti High School this year, and that team may be the Romulus High School Eagles of Coach Al Wilkerson.

The Eagles put together three excellent quarters of basketball last Tuesday, but an abominable third quarter, which saw Ypsi outscore Romulus 20-9, helped defeat the Eagles 66-59.

Perhaps the Eagles were flat coming off the Ypsi performance, or looking ahead to their next contest with number one ranked and undefeated Highland Park, whatever the reason Romulus played terribly on Friday night and escaped with a narrow 67-61 win against a 3-14 Class D. St. Florian's Hamtramack.

The week's split left the Eagles with, a thus far, disappointing 9-8 season mark. Many people had thought that Romulus might have its best season this year since the departure of NBA star John Long, but a schedule that included seven games against top ten ranked teams and a marked penchant for inconsistency against lesser teams has hurt the heavily laden senior team.

In the Ypsi matchup, Romulus looked like the team that everyone thought they would be. Matching the taller Braves basket for basket the Eagles finished the first quarter deadlocked at 17.

The second period saw more of the same with Pat Bell and William McNeil doing yeoman's work on both ends of the court and the half ended with Ypsi holding on to a slim 31-29 advantage.

In the third period Romulus fell into what has now become an all too familiar scene to Wilkerson. Nobody shot well; nobody rebounded; and nobody played defense and the Braves big front-line of Keith Armstrong and Lawrence Spears had a field day at Ypsi spurred to a 51-38 lead after three periods of play.

Romulus once again looked like an outstanding ball club in the final stanza and managed to narrow the margin to two points, but two very bad calls by officials put the Braves up by six and they hung on to win 66-59.

An apparent overconfident Eagle squad traveled to Hamtramack St. Florian's last week, but the Eagles could not intimidate tiny St. Florian's. The game looked like on runaway on paper, however, the Lancers had apparently not read the Eagle press clippings, or were not impressed by the if they had.

The Lancers did just the opposite of what everyone had expected, they ran against the quicker and larger Eagles and did it very well. Romulus got some early fire power from Troy Williams in the form of 12 points and jumped to a first quarter lead of 21-14.

If the Eagles expected St. Florian's to fold after that, they were sadly mistaken. The Lancers came back with an outstanding board performance and superb offensive display from Dennis Dardzinski with 16 first half point to outscore the Eagles 20-18 and narrow the gap to 39-34 at halftime.

Still, the Romulus players seemed unimpressed and continued to play sloppily in the third quarter which saw Dardzinski and the Lancers outgun the Eagles 15-12, to narrow the gap even further 51-49.

Romulus didn't wake up until midway through the final quarter when they found themselves suddenly behind the scrappy Catholic League team by three points. At this point Wilkerson inserted All-Area football running back John Hollifield into the lineup and the hard-playing sub responded with eight fourth quarter points to finally give the Eagles a scary 67-61 victory.

"I just can't understand this ballclub. They seem to be more involved in looking good than in playing basketball. There doesn't seem to be anyone on the team who wants to take charge. We can thank Johnny (Hollifield) for the St. Florian's win. The (the Lancers) really played well and just wanted to win more than we did," said Wilkerson.

Despite their less than impressive performance Wilkerson still believes the team has an excellent chance in the state playoffs. "I believe we have a definite shot at winning our district if we can pull together. This team needs some goals to shoot at and the playoffs give us those goals. We have a difficult district, but it is one we can win if we play to our potential," said the Eagle mentor.

Romulus will play in the district playoffs at Ypsilanti High School. The teams in the district include the host school, Belleville, Monroe, Adrian, Temperance Bedford, and Romulus. "Right now it looks like Ypsi and Monroe are the teams to beat, but anyone of five schools have a legitimate shot at it," said Wilkerson.

The Eagles still have two tough games ahead of them prior to playoffs. All American candidate Patrick Ford and Detroit Cass Tech will invade Romulus next Tuesday, and Inkster Cherry Hill will travel to Romulus to finish off the regular schedule on Thursday.

"Ford is an exciting player to watch and usually puts on a great show for the fans. Cherry Hill is down this year, but they always seem to play us very tough," said Wilkerson.

Teen drug abuse discussions set

Teenagers with drug and alcohol problems are the focus of Mercywood Hospital's Substance Abuse Discussions for March.

Held at the hospital on Jackson Road each Tuesday evening at 7, the discussions are offered to the public at no charge and led by Mercywood Psychiatrist David Logan, MD, specialist in the treatment of substance abuse.

Noting that community response to the new discussion series has been "very rewarding," Logan reported that the March series will be especially helpful because Families Anonymous and Alanon will meet immediately following each presentation.

"We encourage anyone who suspects a teenager close to them of abusing drugs or alcohol, and is wondering how to help, to come to the meetings," Logan said.

Topics for the month include "Teenage Drug and Alcohol Abuse: The Adolescent Failure Syndrome," March 2; "Is My Teenager Harmfully Involved?," March 9; "What is Effective Treatment?," March 16; and "How Can I Get My Child to Accept Help?" March 23.

Information about the discussions, initiated in February, may be obtained by calling 572-4000.

Views On Dental Health

By PHILIP MEIZELS, D.D.S.

"HIGH-SPEED" TO THE RESCUE

Tremendous improvements have been made in the efficiency of dental services. An example is the equipment used to prepare the teeth for fillings and crowns. For years dentists have used rotary tools (drills) for this purpose. These cutting instruments rotated at a top speed of 5,000 rpm's. Discomfort was often felt from the vibration, pressure and heat that developed in the use of these instruments.

Today, improvements in the drill motors and the use of the turbine principle permit speeds of up to 300,000 revolutions per minute. Only a very light touch is required to cut enamel and dentin at these high speeds. The rotations are so rapid that the sense of vibration is eliminated. Of course heat is generated by such rapid cutting, but the instruments are devised so that a spray of water and air is directed at the area being prepared, keeping the temperature comfortable.

The advent of the high speed drill and new types of superior cutting tools add up to less drilling time and more comfort in dental procedures.

A public service to promote better dental health. From the office of PHILIP MEIZELS, D.D.S., 9840 Haggerty Rd., Belleville. Phone 697-4400.

Colleges announce honor students; winner in forensics tournament

On the Dean's List

A total of 460 students at Michigan State University in East Lansing achieved a 4.0 or "straight A" grade point average during the fall term.

Of the honor students, 398 were from Michigan and included Jane C. Salut of 13260 Edgedale Dr., Belleville. Miss Salut, who graduated from Belleville High School, is a senior in the theatre curriculum.

BOWLING GREEN State University in Bowling Green, Ohio has named 1,911 of its students to the Honors List for the fall quarter for earning a 3.5 or better grade point average on a 4.0 scale.

Of those named, 560 or 9.9 percent of the undergraduates earned straight A averages. Among the 208 seniors achieving that status was Christopher Alan Liedel, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Liedel of Belleville.

THE DEAN'S LIST for Northern Michigan University's fall semester, which ended Dec. 19, has been announced by Registrar Harry Rajala.

Heading the list of 1,212 honor students are 101 who earned all A's. Another 1,111 undergraduates achieved at least a 3.25 GPA. Among that number was a New Boston resident, Andrew Chihan of 30876 West Road.

In addition to earning at least a 3.25, students at the Marquette campus must have carried 12 credits to qualify for the Dean's List.

CENTRAL MICHIGAN University's fall semester high honors list includes Sue Meyer, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Meyer of 127 Madelon St., Belleville.

A graduate of Belleville High School and a freshman at CMU, Miss Meyer was among the 106 who earned straight A's. Some 1,125 students made the honors list out of a total enrollment of 16,477.

Honor students were chosen from the top 10 percent of each academic class. In addition, to qualify for honors, a student had to have completed 12 or more letter-graded hours of on-campus credit during the semester and have a grade point average of no lower than 3.50.

For the fall semester, 315 freshmen made the list, 308 sophomore, 270 juniors and 232 seniors.

SOME 60 UNDERGRADUATE students at the University of Michigan School of Natural Resources have been named to the Dean's List for the fall, 1981, academic term.

This honor is given to full-time students who earn an overall grade point average of 3.50 or higher (out of a possible 4.0) for that term.

Among those honored was a Belleville resident, Gregory J. Black of 533 Rustic Lane East.

First place in Forensics

Cedarville College's Jill Southward placed first in poetry out of 30 contestants in the recent 1982 Air City Forensic Tournament. The competition was held at Wright State University in Dayton, Ohio Jan. 15 and 16. In the overall competition, the Cedarville College Forensic Team placed sixth. Additional awards went to Mark Morley of Dayton and Miss Southward of Belleville, who teamed up and won second place in a dramatic duo competition.

Miss Southward is a junior with a double major in speech and english at the Baptist College of Liberal Arts and Science, located 13 miles south of Springfield, Ohio.

She is a member of the Village Players of Cedarville College and recently performed in a Readers' theatre presentation entitled, "Who Can Be Reasonable When the Subject is Love?"

MISS SOUTHWARD

Miss Southward has also been chosen to join the college team which will be traveling to Brazil for five weeks this summer as a missionary internship service. She will be the lead female singer in a vocal group and has also been asked to give dramatic readings. Students going must learn to perform in the Portuguese language.

For the start of Lent — Potato-Cod Casserole

Old Original Bookbinder's Restaurant in Philadelphia has long been celebrated for the celebrities who come to sample its seafood specialties — from Barrymore to Babe Ruth; from Caruso, who claimed their clam juice cleared up voice problems, to Streisand, who may well have come to test Caruso's cure.

While the restaurant is indeed old, founded in 1865, its distinguished patrons prove it has not forgotten the original 4-star touches that made it a superstar of American restaurants.

Why not start your own tradition by treating your family as VIPs? A Bookbinder's-style feast could include a pickled herring or crabmeat cocktail appetizer, potato-cod casserole, fresh buttered vegetables and a choice of melon (in season) or ice cream.

The casserole, which is ideal for Ash Wednesday or other Lenten dinners, combines the best of two traditions: Bookbinder's care with cod and Ore-Ida's finesse with frozen potatoes.

Potato-Cod Casserole

- 1/2 lb. salt cod
- 1 lb. (1/2 package) frozen small whole potatoes
- 1 cup sour cream
- 1/2 cup water
- 1/2 cup chopped chives

- 1/4 cup chopped parsley
- 2 cloves garlic, crushed
- 1 teaspoon pepper
- 1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese (divided)
- 3 tablespoons dry bread crumbs
- 2 tablespoons melted butter

Soak cod in enough cold water to cover for 6 to 8 hours or overnight. Rinse well and drain. Poach fish in a saucepan with enough water to cover; simmer, covered, until fish flakes easily — about 15 minutes. Meanwhile, cook potatoes in a separate pan with enough salted, boiling water to cover. Simmer, covered, until potatoes are just barely tender — about 15 minutes.

Drain fish. Flake with a fork. Drain potatoes and cool. Stir sour cream, adding 1/2 cup water slowly. Stir in chives, parsley, garlic and pepper. Add half (1/4 cup) of the Parmesan. Stir in the flaked fish.

Cut potatoes in half lengthwise. Arrange half the potatoes in a buttered 1 1/2-quart shallow casserole (or four individual soup tureens). Spoon half the sour cream mixture over potatoes in the casserole(s). Arrange remaining potatoes in the casserole(s) and top with remaining sour cream mixture.

Mix remaining Parmesan with bread crumbs and melted butter. Sprinkle over potato mixture in casserole. Bake at 400°F. for about 15 minutes; until heated through. Makes 4 servings.

If you've ever had those days when the ol' kidneys seem to be working overtime and you're wondering why since you've had hardly anything to drink all day, the following might be an explanation.

A mighty large portion of what we EAT, it seems, is mere water and here's the way things boil down:

Most fruits are water-packed (and we don't mean in cans.) Cantaloupes are 94 percent water; apples and blackberries 84; avocados 85, and bananas 74. That's the way it goes with a lot of vegetables, too. Asparagus is 93 percent water; lima beans 67; green beans 89; broccoli 90; cauliflower 92 and two really soupy ones — lettuce and cucumbers — at a whopping 96 percent! And — would you believe that a carrot, by percentage, has more water than a shot of booze? It's true! That proverbial bunny food is 90 percent water while the water content in whiskey is only 58 percent.

Even our family of grains is not waterproof. Whole wheat bread is 37 percent water and rye and white aren't much drier at 35 percent. Pancakes can make for a rather "wet" breakfast being 55 percent water so for a less moist dish, get out the cornflakes. They're a mere 4 percent water. Rice averages out at 12 percent when raw, 74 percent H-2-O when cooked.

As for snacks, no wonder we munch them with a beer or Coke. The average water content is only 4 percent for popcorn, 5 for peanuts and 8 for pretzels. And if that Hershey bar makes you thirsty, it's because chocolate is only 1 percent water. Sugar has just a trace of the stuff but honey is 20 percent water, on average.

And why do we eat jelly with our peanut butter sandwiches? Cuz that all-American spread is only 2 percent water while jelly has that 35 percent we need to keep it from sticking to the roofs of our mouths.

In the dairy department, the water content for cheddar and Roquefort cheese is about 37 percent while a raw egg contains 74 percent; milk 87 percent and butter only 16 percent.

When it comes to meat, you're consuming 13 percent water in your cooked bacon; 39 in smoked ham; 47 in hamburger; 54 in sirloin steak and 66 in broiled chicken.

Now — would you care for a glass of water with your water — oops, I mean with your MEAL, sir? M'am?

SOME OF THOSE THINGS I BETCHA DIDN'T KNOW

For instance — didja know that a group of kangaroos is known as a troop? Or that nicotine was named after Jean Nicot, the French ambassador who first introduced tobacco to his native land?

That it was in 1888 that the first hand-held camera was invented — and by George Eastman, no less?

Or that the first panel quiz show on radio was "Information Please" aired on May 17, 1939?

And how's your store of naval information (or perhaps I should say "maritime"?) Did you know that the U. S. Coast Guard was created in 1790 when the first Congress authorized the construction of 10 vessels for the collection of revenue — NOT for the safety of our shores?

And if you think we have gloomy days here, try this one on for size — for 186 days a year the sun is not seen at the North Pole.

You think YOU had it rough this winter! Paradise Ranger Station in Washington, according to Figgie International's Thermometer Corporation of America, shoveled 1,122 inches which fell in one season. Now, quit your grumbling!

Rain's not your bag either? Then stay away from Cherrapunji, India. It holds the record for the most rainfall in 12 months — 1,042 inches. However, that's not the wettest place on earth. Mount Waialeale, Hawaii, which averages 460 inches of rain per year, is the, shall we say? "dampest."

In contrast, Arica, Chile is the driest. The town once went 14 years without rain.

FOUR FATHERS were discussing family problems at a favorite watering spot. Said one of them, his assertiveness bolstered by joy juice: "Know something? I'm gonna quit arguing with my teenage kid about borrowing the car. From now on whenever I need it, by golly, I'm just gonna take it!"

IF YOU'RE AMONG the Pisceans observing a birthday this week, you share the last few days of February with the likes of Sen. Edward Kennedy and Robert (Sanka) Young who have a quarter century dividing them and who celebrated "biggies" (50 and 75, respectively) on the 22nd. And Ol' George, were he still alive, would be chalking up Number 250.

Then there's Peter Fonda, who marked his natal date on the 23rd and, we wonder was his family back from Golden Pond in time to see him blow out his 43 candles?

This year George Harrison of Beatles fame may just be asking himself "Is it really true that life begins ... NOW?" He hits the big Four-Oh tomorrow, Feb. 25. And, too it'll be the 69th for Jim Backus, the voice of Mr. McGoo. (Did he ever make it back from Gilligan's island?)

And the following day has Tony Randall, 62; Jackie (How sweet it IS) Gleason, 66; Johnny Cash, at half a century; Fats Domino, 54, Alan Alda's dad, Robert, 68; and Battle Creek's Betty Hutton, 61; rolling over another year on the calendar.

Friday, the 27th, will mark a milestone for Elizabeth Taylor as she counts the 50 candles on her birthday cake. She has a mutual birth date with Joanne Woodward, 52, and Ralph Nader, 48.

Bringing up the rear and the baby of the bunch is Bernadette Peters who'll be 34 as February bids adieu. (And, happy birthday will be sung to our first "star" on that date, too.)

THE BOTTOM LINE: The most difficult arithmetic to master is the art of counting your blessings.

Our Opinions

Wrestling a problem poorly handled

Sometimes rules should be bent. A case in point was the disqualification of a young high school wrestler at the district tournament held in Bedford Temperance last Saturday. — In our opinion he should not have been disqualified.

Let us make it clear here that we are not challenging the integrity of the persons involved, but the flagrant denial of "due process" to any high school senior from participating in the tournament because of a mix-up between coach and tournament manager, it appears to us, was too great a penalty for the young man to pay.

What had apparently occurred was Wayne Memorial Coach Don Haney wanted his wrestler to compete at 167 instead of 185 since the young man had been certified in both weight classes. He approached the tournament manager and announced his plans. However, the manager replied that that would not be permissible for reasons that still remain unclear.

After contacting the Michigan High School Athletic Association officials, who urged the tournament manager to convene a grievance committee, the tournament manager disappeared briefly from the scenario. In the meantime Haney had the athlete weigh in at 167.

When the manager returned he informed Haney that he didn't convene the grievance committee and, since the final decision was his in such matters, he would not permit the wrestler to compete at 167. And, since the young man had weighed in at 167, he is disqualified to compete in the heavier weight class as well.

We will confess that we do not know the rules and regulations of high school wrestling in this state, but we do feel that this rare — and it is rare — occurrence could have been handled in a way so not to penalize the young wrestler.

The senior will not be back next year. And three long years of hard work were wasted. No check that. The young man received valuable coaching and experience during his high school career. It is unfortunate however, that his prep career had to end this way.

Bottles, bongos and Dillon's rule

By BERNARD F. HILLENBRAND

Returnable bottles and bongos have one thing in common: Dillon's rule, a legal principle established in 1868 by Iowa Judge John F. Dillon and upheld by the Supreme Court in 1903. It prohibits local governments from using any power not expressly granted by the state.

The Dillon rule recently prevented one Virginia county from instituting bottle laws and two from banning sale of drug paraphernalia. Strict interpretation required Nebraska to set county sheriffs' pay, and Utah to regulate Salt Lake County's clerks' fees.

True, local governments are not mentioned in the U.S. Constitution. They are creatures of an omnipotent state. But in this complex world, is it necessary state legislators occupy themselves with such minutiae? As a result, state-wide issues — like toxic waste disposal, higher education and criminal justice — remain untended. This archaic law maintains:

"The true view is this: Municipal corporations owe their origin to, and derive their powers and rights wholly from the legislature. It breathes into them the breath of life, without which they cannot exist. As it creates, so may it destroy."

According to a new study by the U.S. Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Affairs (ACIR), two-thirds of the bills introduced in the Alabama legislature deal with local issues. The fate of each bill is decided by the locality's elected representatives as a "legislative courtesy." Now that is what I call concentrating power in the hands of the few.

Joseph F. Zimmerman, author of the ACIR report and professor of political science at State University of New York, Albany, uses the term "local discretionary authority," to refer to the power of a local government to conduct its own affairs.

He measures such authority in four areas: power to determine organization, functions performed, personnel, and finance.

A number of states have recently broken with the Dillon rule in all matters unrelated to money. Others that previously addressed local government affairs piecemeal are rewiring the laws in more orderly ways. Since 1970, state laws have been revised in Arkansas, California, Iowa, New Jersey, New York, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Colorado and Virginia. Some statutes are being revised in Indiana, Georgia and Kentucky.

Unfortunately, home rule powers are not always interpreted as written. As Edward E. Ferguson, a representative of Indiana county officials, explains, home rule has been on the books since 1970. State officials discouraged its use. "If you wanted to create a data processing department in county government, you had to go to the General Assembly for permission — and then they told you the kind of personnel you had to hire. Changes in the law during 1981 made crystal clear that local governments have broad home rule powers," he says.

Similarly, Iowa voters reversed the Dillon rule in 1978, permitting home rule in all areas save taxation. The move came only after several telling incidents. One concerned a county infested with wild dogs. Animal control was not an ordained function. Another issue particularly irksome to some citizens: cities could regulate massage parlors, counties couldn't. The ACIR study found this typical of most states. As Zimmerman had said, "Counties nationwide have been granted fewer powers than cities relating to all four types of authority."

Urban counties, more than cities, must be given additional powers endowing them with the option of providing services on a regional basis. There is little doubt that the squeeze between expenditures and revenue has shifted responsibilities from municipalities to urban counties, and that counties must have flexibility to administer such programs efficiently.

with the Sheriff's Department, if the purchase was above board?" Welty's answer was "no comment."

When Welty was asked a question at an earlier board meeting about the amount of salaries paid out that month to the police department, his answer as treasurer and police commissioner, was "I don't know."

Because of Welty's attitude or inability to answer questions at the meetings, and because of his recommendations to appoint Debs as police commander, I asked Welty to step down from his appointment as police commissioner. I still ask Welty to do this.

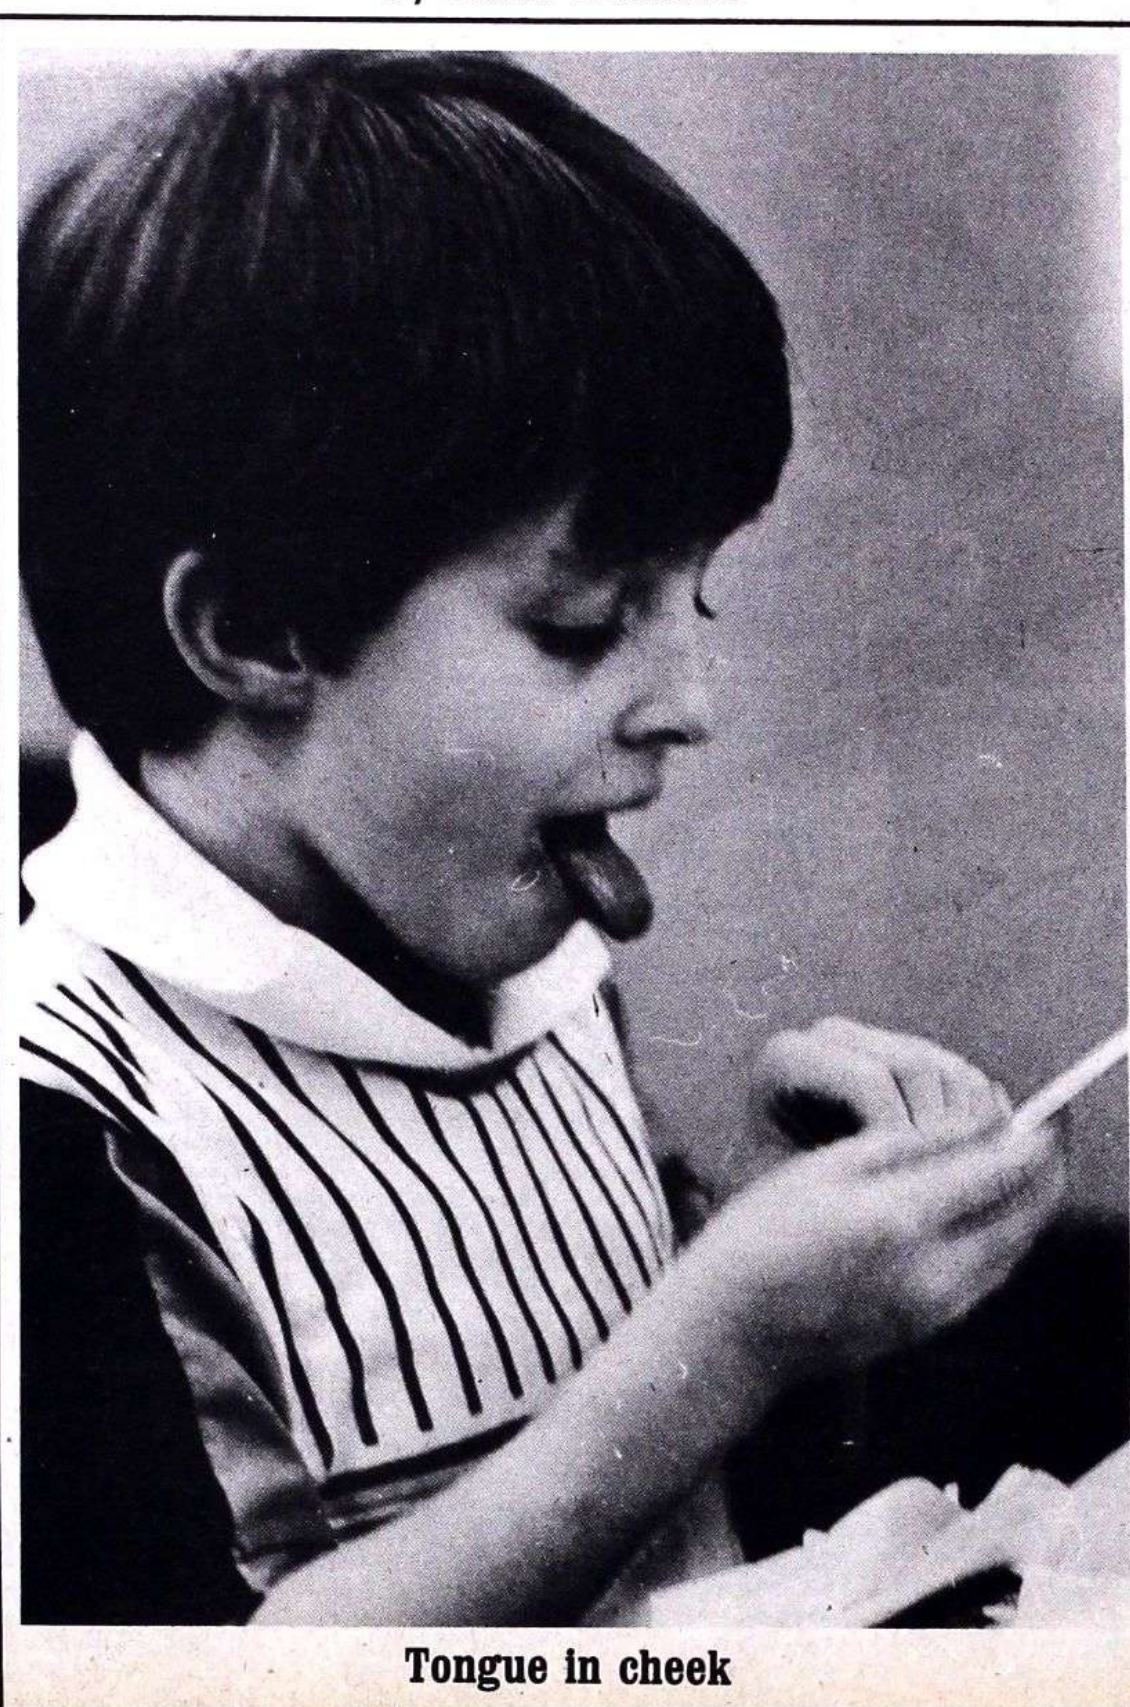

One citizen is being sued for asking questions at a board meeting, another citizen has been threatened of being sued for heading a recall committee, and now I am accused of being "repulsive" for asking some questions. It will be a sad day in our community, if the citizens feel they cannot ask questions of their public officials.

Now your readers can decide for themselves, whether these questions should have been asked. However, I will continue to question the board whenever I feel it necessary. But remember, my questions or criticisms are asked at a public meeting where these people have the opportunity to answer or defend themselves. I did not receive the same courtesy.

Was it wrong to ask about scout car deal?

In reply to the letter printed in the Associated Newspaper, February 17 and 18, 1982, criticizing the manner in which I asked a member of the Van Buren Township Board a question, I would like your readers to hear the "other side" for a change and let them judge for themselves.

Tom Welty, treasurer and police commissioner, led everyone to believe the township was able to get a real deal—5 police cars for "about" $8,000—from the Wayne County Sheriff's Department. This was to transpire because of Richard Debs' expertise in administrative duties. Remember Debs was Welty's recommendation for police commander, even after knowing of his arrest record as reported in the Detroit News.

When Tom Welty was questioned by myself and another citizen as to WHY the invoice billed was for $19,000 plus, and neither the invoice nor the purchase order read "negotiable" as Welty had stated, Welty's only comment on these questions were "it is negotiable." A few days later Welty went to the paper with the story that because of the people questioning this "deal," the negotiations were cancelled and the township would have to pay full price.

My question that was criticized as being "ill-mannered" at the last board meeting was, "Tom Welty, since I was one of the people accused by you in a newspaper article, I would like you to explain in public how I could have been the cause of squelching the deal

'We're all terminal cases'

By TOM MOORADIAN
Managing Editor

Cars can kill as most of us realize and the fumes from the exhaust systems of gasoline-burning vehicles can be equally deadly.

That grim reminder was again made evident last week as carbon monoxide poisoning claimed the life of a veteran and admired police chief and has placed two young persons on the critical list at the hospital.

It is difficult to comment on such tragedies because they are so close to home.

But, sometimes it's best to forget the textbook and remind readers that to sit in a gasoline-burning vehicle while the engine is running in an enclosed structure is like sentencing yourself and anyone with you to the gas chamber.

Although, as author John Irving's Garp would say in the novel by the same name, "that we are all terminal cases", there are cautions that can be taken to avert early departures.

Because each of us are not an island unto ourselves, what happens to us is, indeed, important in the lives of many. Life is sweet. It is filled with danger — it has its ups and downs — but the profoundness of sharing each day with another human being has no equal, we believe, to any other relationships created on this earth.

In a precarious world, man's life seems to be in jeopardy wherever he turns.

It is difficult not to be bitter when death strikes, even when we are prepared for it.

But when a life is taken accidentally, those of us who survive wonder "Why?" The vacuum is forced upon us when we are least prepared; our emotions rebel and we wonder if there were any way that the death could have been prevented.

We can not stop death, but we can protect our loved ones by teaching and stressing the many dangers that can be potentially fatal.

considering a special state law to add clout to ordinance. Essentially, they want to pass political responsibility on to the state.

Similarly, the town of Framingham, Mass., annually submits a bill to the state legislature to create the position of its executive secretary. When asked why, officials say they believe the procedure adds prestige to the office.

Zimmerman sees ambivalence toward local autonomy as a "healthy recognition that certain local problems are beyond local solution," and require superior resources of the state. Wild dogs and brush fires are certainly not among them.

Home rule is not easily won, but it is easy to lose: The West Virginia Supreme Court invalidated most local government authority in 1979 and limited cities to selecting one of four forms of government. In Oklahoma, where many local officials have been charged with graft, the state will probably curtail much of the citizens' right to determine their own affairs.

Key statement was omitted

EDITOR—My name is Maria Adams, and I'm President of Student Council at Romulus Senior High School.

I'm writing you in regards to an article that was published in the February 3 edition of the Roman.

It was on "Teacher Appreciation Week" at the Senior High.

In this article there were statements that were not said, and a very important statement was left out. It was on what we did for the teachers during the week.

I hope that this was just an oversight and shall not happen again. I believe that this statement (article) was very important both for the parents and students of Romulus. It showed that the kids still enjoy school and appreciate their teachers.

I hope that in the future all of the articles we send in shall be written in full and with no added statements.

Letterwriters and politics

EDITOR—I am never ceased to be amazed at the "Letters to the Editor" that appear in our papers, people who attend Public Hearings for political gain, and on and on.

My point:

In February 18 edition of the Wayne-Westland Eagles there appears a letter from Mr. Louie Wojak decrying the taxes that the schools impose upon the citizens of the community and the fact that the teachers and administrators failed to take a pay cut, etc., etc.

Let the facts reveal that Mr. Wojak is a police officer for the City of Westland who is currently negotiating a new contract with the city and who refuses to take/make concessions or take pay cuts, in fact they too would rather see the officers laid off.

At a meeting of the schools, a public hearing, a Mr. Dewey Combs came forward to denounce the schools for their seeking a Community College designation and also ridiculed the schools for getting a pay raise and not seeking cuts or concessions.

Let the record show that Mr. Combs is a Lieutenant for the Westland Police Department, is the chief negotiator for the Westland Police Department who have taken a stand for not taking any types of concessions or cuts.

Let it also show that Mr. Combs' daughter is President of the Wayne-Westland Secretarial bagging unit and that his wife is also employed by the Wayne-Westland Schools in the cafeteria.

Now, isn't that just great to speak out of both sides of one's mouth. By the way, the word is out that Mr. Combs would like to be on the Board of Education and isn't it great that he can come out and make all of these statements for his own political gain. Shame on Combs, and his two-faced approach. His remarks are especially two-faced with his remarks "Something affects people in authority. It's the knowledge syndrome: They feel they know what's best for you." Well, well... let's see what our illustrious Mr. Combs does with the negotiations with the City and the Police Department when his turn comes about!!! (Quoted from another community newspaper.)

Also, Jim Netter who also took the stand and what did he have to say? Well, he's a $1 million salesman for Real Estate #21.

Isn't it funny that those who have the least to talk about take the most time. Perhaps some of you citizens who are so anxious to follow these Pied Pipers should take the time to investigate the background motives for taking the stands that they do at a public forum.

'Operation Joy' was successful

EDITOR—Just a small note to let you and your readers know that "Operation Joy," a program that the Associated Newspapers had a part in promoting was a great success.

Food baskets for a good Christmas dinner were given to fifty-three families by the cooperative effort of people who care. Most of these baskets were taken to the homes of the recipients by our volunteer workers.

Time and again, these volunteers came back saying, "I'm glad I was able to deliver that basket. Those people really needed help!"

Many people worked together to make this pilot program possible. "OPERATION JOY" was initiated by the churches above, with the guidance of Family and Neighborhood Services.

The Inkster Leger-Star gave the project excellent coverage, and our local radio station, WCHB, broadcast the program.

Volunteers came forth and gave very generously of their time. Local schools spread the word; schools, churches, and religious groups donated food and money; local merchants contributed to the project.

From the "OPERATION JOY" team: many thanks for your help. Your contribution helped make Christmas a happy time for many people.

Propaganda on W-W college?

EDITOR—At the present time I am a student in Adult Education, at Wayne Memorial High School.

On Wednesday evening, Feb. 10, during our first class, we were told to go to an Orientation meeting in the cafeteria at 7:45 p.m.

During the course of the whole meeting, they served coffee and donuts, and spent a whole hour promoting the Wayne-Westland Community College, complete with petitions to sign.

I think this was done in very poor taste, to take people out of their classes for a meeting of this nature. According to the State Requirement for Adult Education, we must be in class for a required number of hours in order to qualify for credit.

How can the Administration justify this wasted hour, which was suppose to be class time?

Maybe this letter might warm your heart as it warmed mine.

On a freezing cold day I was driving in my car which stalled on Savage Road. The first three travelers stopped to help me. One stayed with me while the other two went on their way.

After she falls asleep you can grab a few hours of relaxation before it starts all over again tomorrow.

ing the facts), so when people call "Information" for the number of the service, they were given the number of the pillow renovators. An employee at the pillow company said she had been getting "kinky" phone calls all day the day after the article appeared in the paper.

Apparently that particular employee wasn't into Kink, because she reported the problem to the telephone company within a matter of hours.

So it's all straightened out now, and if you call "Information" for either the number of the funny phone call service or the pillow fixers, the operator will make every effort to determine which "Pillow Talk" you really want.

By the way, if you're too timid to tell her that you want the phone service, I think somebody said that heavy breathers almost always get the right number without ever having to say a word.

Isn't the telephone a marvelous invention?

Citizens need a tax-break

EDITOR—would you please publish this letter to:

The Honorable Charles Pickering, Mayor, City of Westland, 36601 Ford Road, Westland, Michigan 48185.

Dear Mr. Mayor and Honorable Council Members:

When does the citizenry of Westland get a break? We have voted for your millages, we have been dutiful in paying our taxes, we've done obedience to the city fathers, we've danced to their piping.

With the rescheduling of school taxes, my house payment has increased an unbelievable $102.00 per month, virtually overnight. What a pleasant reward for Westland homeowners. Our paychecks, spent by the time we receive them, cannot possibly endure this added burden.

In the past seven and a half years, my wife and I have voted in favor of every millage increase because we wanted our children, and others, to enjoy and benefit from a good education in the Wayne-Westland Schools. When I called the City Clerk's Office to enquire about the outrageous increase in my taxes, I was caustically informed "It's your fault—you voted for millage increases to support an already financially 'fat' school system."

I suppose the real fault lay with our believing in the campaign language and threats of teacher lay-offs, sports and music programs eradicated, academic anemia and school closings. Nevertheless, we rallied to save the "system."

How do you, Mr. Mayor, Council Members, schoolboard officials and of course, Mr. Dyer, propose to alleviate the beleaguered citizenry? We've taken it on the chin as long as can be expected! You as a Council and schoolboard have shown no compassion nor RESTRAINT in your tax "extravaganza." You even dare suggest another community college in Westland in light of declining enrollments and financial depletion in colleges surrounding our community.

How long do you feel we will endure such nonsense and overburdening? Surely, you are not so void of wisdom, discretion, integrity and propriety as to expect an unending flow of revenues from us? Must Westland become another Alpena or Taylor before you are convinced? Rest assured, Westland citizens are becoming very aware of the acuteness of this situation... the proverbial well is running dry.

Some folks will eventually move away in disgust, some will resign themselves to go on paying grudgingly, however, don't count the majority of our citizens apathetic to this terrible robbery of our money and our pride.

Mr. Mayor, distinguished council members, I urge you to curb such flagrant spending and exert pressure on the schoolboard members and Mr. Dyer. Inevitable changes must be made... quickly! Will you repeal these exorbitant taxes of your own volition? Will you cease such reckless and sumptuous spending of your own initiative? Something WILL be done—if not by YOU then, eventually by US.

Respectfully,

So, my friends and I have a suggestion—why not have a "Kids' Column" in your newspaper for just us kids? We would really appreciate it.

Council disgusts Westland citizen

EDITOR—I am completely disgusted with the attitude of the Westland City Council toward Mayor Charles Pickering.

Always picky, picky, picky. My patience and the patience of many Westland citizens is wearing very thin.

Every move that Mayor Pickering makes, the council throws a roadblock in its path. The mayor has inherited a diehard and anti-Pickering Council.

Now that has to be changed, and changed soon.

Four councilmen are slated for a re-election next year. The voters will be reminded at that time of their past performance, and they can oust them out of office with their ballot. There were many politicians in history that thought they were untouchable, fell by the wayside.

Better still to target four for a recall. It would be much faster than waiting for an election.

Councilman Charles Griffin made a statement at the council meeting that he didn't care if the citizens started a recall. The citizens may just do that. Maybe he'll get his wish.

Remember voters, you have elected Charles Pickering to be your mayor, not a puppet to the council.

So my advice to the council is shape up, or ship out.

The guest editorial by James R. Davis that appeared in the Westland Eagle February 17-18 pertaining to the council is a gem.

Patient criticizes hospital services

EDITOR—On January 31, 1982 I was admitted to Garden City Osteopathic Hospital for a fractured vertebra.

Like most people, I have been in several hospitals in my lifetime and have never been subjected to such rudeness or uncleanness before.

On the evening of my admission the Supervisor of Nurses told me off royally for asking for a glass of water with which to take my medication. She had plenty of time to watch the snow storm from our window, but no time to get me a pitcher of water.

I was confined to my bed and required the use of a bed pan, which to my discomfort and embarrassment, I was not always too adept. To put it plainly, I needed an occasional change of linen. The entire week of my stay resulted in my sleeping on the same soiled sheets. My roommates bedding was changed, and

Reflections

Love those telephones

There is nothing better to zip up the old tired blood than a young daughter in love.

The first clue to the situation is noticing the unbalanced way she walks.

Upon investigation one finds she is unbalanced because her right ear has suddenly sprouted a telephone, which seems to have taken up a permanent lodging and there isn't much a mother can do about restoring the fragile, gentle beauty of an unblemished ear, until the love affair is over.

The next clue, of course, is the violent mood changes.

The household can be humming along in its own chaotic pattern, when suddenly a door flies open, frigid air pours into the room, followed by a sweet humming sound, and a glow which lights up the room.

"I'm in love, I'm in love," the sylph-like creature hums, throwing running shoes on the coffee table, Vic Tanny Bag on the sofa, and her schoolbooks go flying through the air to land unceremoniously wherever strikes their fancy.

The telephone rings and she breathes huskily "hello."

The parent never knows when the conversation ends, for suddenly she isn't there. One hears the front door slam, the car screech out of the driveway, and ten minutes later she is back, slamming into the house, banging her head against the door, and screeching, "I hate him, I hate him, I HATE him."

After awhile, if a mother knows enough to keep her mouth shut, she finally finds out why all the venom. The loved one said he was tired, and little Miss "in-love" immediately interpreted that as meaning he had been out the night before with SOMEONE ELSE. Probably some one who has a lot more on the ball than she should ever hope for.

She tears the telephone from her ear and flings it across the room.

"I'm never going to speak to him again. If he calls tell him I'm not here."

One should never take this literally. What happens if one does, and HE does call, and if a parent says SHE isn't there, the kid in love immediately falls on her face and throws a tantrum.

"How can you do that to me?" she wails, and grabs the telephone frantically dials his number while screeching at whatever parent took her at her word.

"Hello," she breathes, and if it is HIM, a beatific smile spreads over her face, and she coos into the telephone, telling him how dumb her parents are.

When she hangs up and reattaches the telephone she is humming.

"I'm in love, I'm in love, I'm in love..."

For two hours you hear her humming away, the hair dryer sounding off its special tune, the radio blaring, and all of the lights in the house blazing away in happy anticipation. HE comes. They leave.

Mona Grigg

What was that you're breathing?

Isn't the telephone a marvelous invention? Think of it—for mere pennies and the push of a few buttons, you can talk to someone who is five minutes or even 5,000 miles away. Without ever having to look someone in the face, you can get across to them that you like them, or that you don't like them, or that the check is in the mail.

You can let your fingers do the walking. You can reach out and touch someone...

You can even think obscene thoughts about a telephone company that would scare people by telling them that their phone bills could double, or even triple, within the next year because they lost (or won) at Monopoly, or something.

One thing you can't do, though, is that you can't make obscene phone calls. At least not to someone who doesn't want you to. You can, however, make a phone call requesting an obscene phone call. You can even charge it on your Visa or Master Card. It'll cost you around $25, but it can be done... if that's what you really want. These calls are made by real, live people who will say "or pant"—anything you want to hear, as long as your credit card is up to date and credible—or creditable.

I don't know—maybe it's just me, but it doesn't sound like a lot of fun. I mean, doesn't it take some of the spontaneity out of the whole thing if you have to tell someone what you want to hear and then wait for them to tell you what you just told them you wanted to hear?

And what if they don't get it right the first time? Will they try again? Can you get your money back?

And what must the real obscene phone callers be thinking about all of this? The ones who do it for nothing and have to put up with people calling them names and hanging up on them or not hanging up on them so the police can put a tracer on their call?

Are they kicking themselves all over the place because it never occurred to them that there might be some people out there who would actually like such a call? And would they pay real dollars for it yet?

And the telephone companies... I'm surprised they are putting up with it, considering they only get the price of a phone call out of it. I wonder if they realize that, at 22 cents a call, it would take 113 "Soap Scoops" to pay for just one requested obscene phone call?

What amazes me is that, even at $25 a call, there's a real possibility that this thing could get to be as big as, say Pac Man, or something. I read that in Milwaukee they printed the wrong number for the phone service in the newspaper there and the family with the wrong number (it was their right number, of course) got 600 calls over a three-week period in December.

Now they're suing the phone service and the newspaper for harassment. If I wasn't afraid that they might sue me, I might suggest that it seems pretty strange that they would wait through 600 phone calls before they finally did something about it. But this whole business is pretty strange, so maybe it's not so. Strange, that is.

One of the two phone services here in the Detroit area is called "Pillow Talk"—the same name as a company in Oak Park that does pillow renovating. (Don't ask me how a company could stay alive renovating pillows—I don't know. I'm just reporting what I read in the paper.)

Anyway, it seems that the phone service "Pillow Talk" had an unlisted number (seems strange to me, too, but again—I'm just report-

Doctor on Call

Here's how to save $200,000

What would it be worth to you to know what you could do to decrease your chances of sudden death by 1,000 percent and become almost $200,000 richer over the next 35 years?

What would it be worth to increase your life span from 5-15 years?

I'll tell you how you can accomplish this seemingly miraculous goal, not by doing something, but by not doing something.

I must be starting to sound like a man with a paper head, but I can assure you that the secret which I am about to reveal to you is a dead ringer to produce the effects which I have described.

First of all, if you put $365 a year in a 15% money market certificate, compounded monthly, after 35 years you will have amassed nearly $200,000. Well it certainly doesn't take any financial or mathematical wizard to figure this out.

The other part of the deal had to do with increasing life expectancy and decreasing the risk of sudden death by 1,000 percent.

This does not involve hiding oneself away in a bacteria-free environment or the adoption of some weird, meat-free, egg-free, sugar-free, or food-free diet (the more I write, the more I think I should actually charge people a couple thousand bucks for this information. But since I promised, let me continue).

In addition, it does not require psycho therapy, hypnosis, encounter groups or other similar effete bourgeois institutions. Parsimony (to be distinguished from persimmons, though each can be quite sour) and fear of death are adequate prerequisites for obtaining the desired effect.

And now I am going to give you in two words my free advice on a sure-fire way to do what I promised — Stop Smoking.

Yes, stop smoking — the American Medical Association has announced that smoking (never mind obesity, diabetes, etc.) by itself increases the risk of heart attack and sudden death by 10 times that of similar age, sex, and weight matched control populations.

In addition, various banking establishments have confirmed the monetary side of the equation which I have described above, i.e., $365 annually, compounded monthly, at 15% over 35 years equals $175,000.

What's That Sound?

By STEVE O'LEARY

Raitt proves a surprise talent

BONNIE RAITT
"Green Lights"
(Warner Bros.)

Bonnie Raitt has always been a sort of enigma to me; though she sounded pleasant enough whenever I happened to catch a song of her's on the radio, I was dumbfounded as to why some folks raved about her year in and year out, as if she was the unadorned queen of rock. "Green Lights" is, admittedly, the first Raitt album I've listened to, and that's only due to the presence of two NRBQ songs, who I've been raving about just as the others do about Bonnie.

Anyway, as you've probably guessed by now, I was surprised. She's good. The album's good. She even pulls off a great cover version of the Equals big 60's hit, "Baby Come Back," with relative ease, not a simple feat considering that a white woman singing reggae could stretch the credibility line a bit, but Raitt does it standing up.

Ex-Rod Stewart mate Ian McLagen now counts himself a member of "Bonnie and the Bump Band," as does ex-Beach Boy Ricky Fataar. They're a hot band all right, and surprisingly enough, the hoard of "guest stars" that normally populate Raitt's LP's are absent (except for some back-up vocals by friend and fellow MUSE worker Jackson Browne), and not even missed in the least. In the place of studio perfectionists making nice, clean, "sterile" rock, is a real live tear 'em up band guaranteed to get your feet a tappin' and your ears perked up.

The two NRBQ songs are naturals for Bonnie, especially "Me And The Boys," which understates her position with the band and is a good slice of life on the road:

"Me and my buddies just like to go
We'll have fun everybody knows
We don't fuss and we don't gripe
We just groove takin' in the sights"

Other highlights include the rave-up "Willy Wontcha," which was penned by the Bump Band's excellent lead guitarist Johnny Lee Schell, Erik Kaz's "River of Tears," and "Keep This Heart In Mind," which is the album's opening cut. Even the Dylan cut, "Let's Keep It Between Us," has soul in Bonnie's hands.

While it isn't an album destined to make Bonnie Raitt a mega-star, there's little doubt that her legion of fans will love it. Also, as I can personally attest to, with a little exposure "Green Lights" is certainly good enough to win her some new fans.

MEL BROOKS
"It's Good To Be The King (Rap)"
(WMOT)

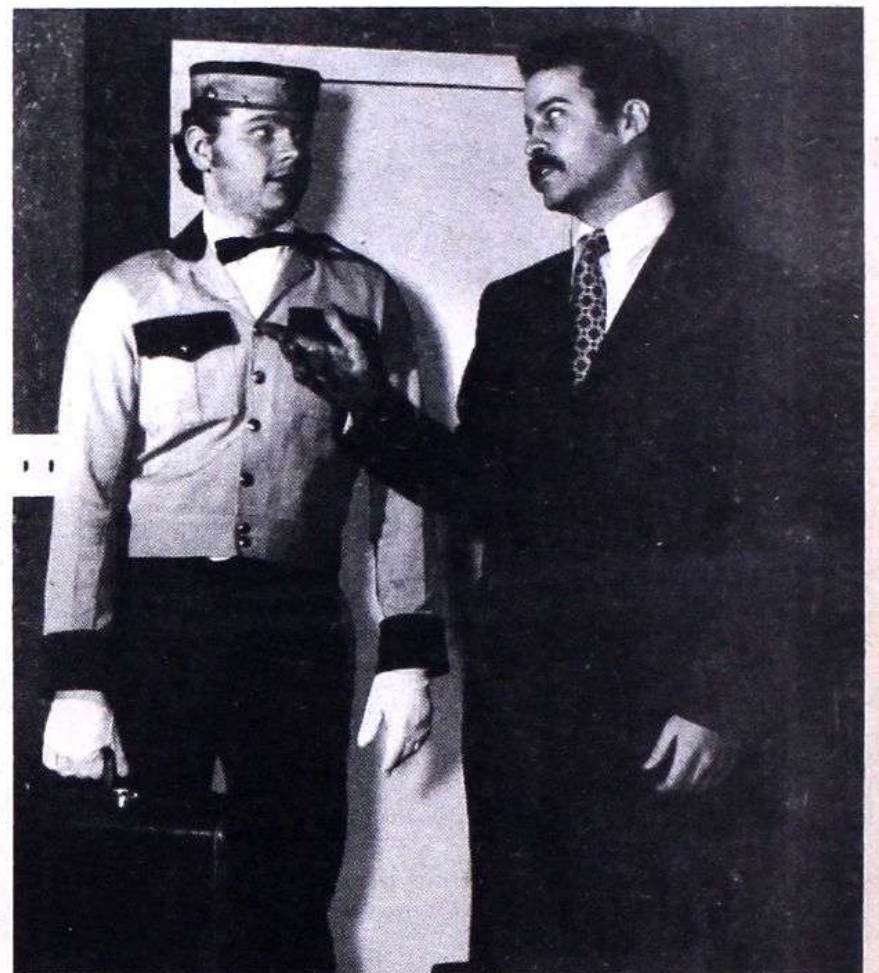

No, I'm not making this up. Mel Brooks really does have a new record out called "It's Good To Be The King," and yes, it is a disco cut, and yes, that is Mel in the persona of France's King Louie (a real schmuck!) singing:
"The rabble wouldn't have it

They were angry with me
They built a big raise they called a guillotine
Then the people up and shouted
"We'll have our day!"

Down with dirty water give us Perrier!"
Yes, it is over seven minutes long, and of course it's funny, why even ask? What? Is it as good as his classic, "Springtime For Hitler?" Yes, only this has a better beat. No, I won't play it all the time, but I'll definitely play it for friends to hear though. Sure, I'll bring it to your party Friday night. Bye now.

BONNIE RAITT

Henry Bennett (left) of Westland plays his first part with the Greenfield Village Players as a bellhop in "Born Yesterday" at the Henry Ford Museum Theater. Here he is receiving instructions from the hotel assistant manager, played by John Hall.

Exploits of junk dealer open theatre season

What happens to a crooked junk dealer when he comes to Washington with his charming girlfriend to make some dishonest deals?

The answer to that question forms the basis of Garson Kanin's comedy, "Born Yesterday," which runs Fridays and Saturdays through March 13 at the Henry Ford Museum Theater. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. and tickets are priced at $4.75.

Judy Holliday originated the role of the girlfriend, Billie, on Broadway and won an Oscar for the film version.

Also available is a dinner theater package that includes dinner at Heritage Hall and a performance for $16.50 with reservations required.

The 1982 theatrical season will also include "The Late George Apley," "The Henrietta," "20th Century," and "The Bat." Cost for a season subscription is $19 or $77.75 for dinner theater.

For further information on the "Born Yesterday" production, call 271-1620, ext. 415 or write to Advance Ticket Sales, The Edison Institute, Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village, 20900 Oakwood, Dearborn 48121.

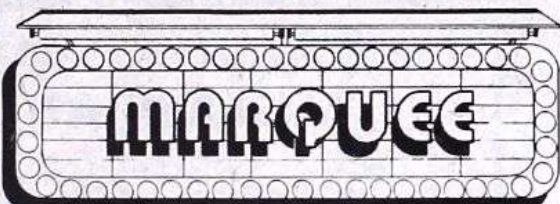

MEL BROOKS

'Border' uses style, not substance

By J.T. YURKO
Special to Playtime
"The Border" is guilty of exaggeration — but in this film, there's little here worthy of exaggerating.

As an understated film drawn from today's headlines, this might have been a newsworthy attempt, but this "Border" exalts itself when it should be humble.

The problem of hundreds of Mexicans sneaking across the border into the United States everyday is a difficult one with which to grapple.

Many businesses rely on these illegal aliens to do work that no one else is willing to do. Other businesses merely exploit the workers in sweatshops.

In this film, Jack Nicholson is an immigration official who is persuaded by his wife (Valerie Perrine) to buy a cute little townhouse in El Paso when he gets a job as a border guard.

To his eyes, the Mexicans are merely seeking a better way of life. But to many of his corrupt fellow border guards, they are just trying to make an easy buck.

With the possible exception of Nicholson, every other character in this film becomes a caricature of excess. The villains, such as Warren Oates and Harvey Keitel, are cold, unfeeling despots, who don't mind at all committing a murder or two to keep the Mexican black market lucrative.

The same is true of the women in the film. As director Tony Richardson cuts back and forth between the Mexican lifestyle and the border guards' homes, these women are stereotypical decadent materialists.

The house has a swimming pool and water bed, and the wives go to the beauty parlor three times a week.

That point is made early, and then too often.

Heavy-handed, overstated and hyperbolic, "The Border," uses an abundance of style to cover a lack of substance.

MOVIES

Dreyfuss creates rare character

"Whose Life Is It, Anyway?" from United Artists. Directed by John Badham. Screenplay by Brian Clark and Reginald Rose. Starring Richard Dreyfuss, John Cassavettes and Christine Lahti. Rated "R".

By J.T. YURKO
Special to Playtime

Here's the tragic irony of "Whose Life Is It, Anyway?" — the audience spends most of the movie hoping the hero will die. He's witty, charming, a talented artist, and an all-around fine human being, but he just wants to stop living. You see, in his mind his life is already over.

He is paralyzed from the neck down, a quadriplegic imprisoned by a hospital bed, his life perpetuated by life-preserving machines.

Depending on your personal or religious beliefs you may agree or disagree with much of what is presented here, but you cannot remain detached, or unmoved by the proceedings.

"Whose Life Is It, Anyway?" is one of the most involving, straight-to-the-gut movies of the year. Those of you who are weak of tearduct are advised to bring your hankiechiefs.

Richard Dreyfuss stars as a successful young sculptor who has a horrendous car accident. He is left a paralytic invalid, unable to do little else but lie there.

His career as a sculptor is over, and without that, he feels that the prolonging of this kind of life is useless and even painful. He starts legal action to ask that he be taken off life-sustaining devices. He wants to commit slow suicide.

Dreyfuss has done some fine work in the past, but this is his best work to date in a role that makes good actors great. Even though for most of the picture he only moves his head, Richard creates a character who can produce that rarest of emotions — someone who can make you laugh and cry at the same time.

Opposing him is his doctor, played with stern authority by John Cassavettes. Their verbal battles are superbly written as two formidable opponents square off on the issue of life and death.

Coming from the Broadway play of the same name, director John Badham has done a superb job of "opening up" the play to the unrestricted format of film, and was also careful not to push a point or mawkishly pull at sentiment.

His camera, like the audience, is a detached but very careful observer. Coming from the man who directed "Saturday Night Fever," it's no surprise that Badham is a director of versatility and much talent.

Fishing Lines

By BOB SAWITSKI

Dreaming of a sleek bass boat

In keeping with the long awaited spring attitude, here's a story, in prose, of a friend of mine who purchased a sleek bass boat a few years ago.

ODE TO A BASS BOAT

Being raised on the banks of Dale Hollow
You could say I was a bassin' man,
I'd catch bass like there was no tomorrow
Keepin' lunkers and some for the pan.
But spendin' all day in a leaky johnboat
Made my sacroiliac pain,
Then someone invented a bass boat
And I had to have one so, in vain,
I got a job at the fillin' station
On the corner of First Street and Main,
For a buck sixty-five an hour,
But my dream soon went down the drain.
I anxiously awaited my first paycheck
But the high soon changed to a low,
'Cause by the time Uncle Sam was through with it, heck,
I'd have a boat in twelve years or so.
Then I made myself a decision
To move north and get me a job,

I wanted a bass boat for fishin'
So bad I began to sob.
I'd go to work in a factory
And work lots of overtime,
At a fantastic union salary
I'd have me a bass boat in no time.
On weekends I still could go fishin'
And catch a few Yankee bass,
And all the time I'd be wishin'
I had a swivel seat under my ass.
I got me a job on an assembly line
Puttin' pick-em-up trucks together,
Conditions were bad but the money was fine
(Do pedestal seats come in leather?)
Over wintry, snow-covered roads I went,
I saved and I worked and I saved,
I'd do anything to save one lousy cent,
"I WANT A BASS BOAT!", I raved.
The day finally came when I saved up enough
So off to the dealer's I ran,
To buy a bass boat with all kinds of good stuff—
A list of options I held in my hand:
Metalflake paint, two depthfinders,

A tach and a new custom trailer,
Power trim on a one hundred-fifty V-six
And a bilge pump so I won't have to bail 'er.
A trolling motor, two pedestal seats,
A CB with all forty channels,
Full carpeting, aerated livewells and—
For cold wather fishing—red flannels.
Some hatches, of course, a rod storage to boot,
A fuel tank so I won't have to row,
Full instrumentation and lots of decals
And a double-knit jumpsuit to go.
Nobody told me when I moved up here
That the North had a fish called a trout,
Bassmen will probably boo, hiss and sneer—
They don't know what I'm talking about.
But to fish in a stream
Like you see in a dream,
Casting Cahill or Coachman or Dun
Is hard to beat
From my front seat,
But...
My boat's six feet wide, the stream's one!

Former opera baritone stars in 'South Pacific' at Ann Arbor theatre

Former Metropolitan Opera baritone Ralph Herbert and critically acclaimed musical theater actress Julia Boxholm will star in Rodgers and Hammerstein's Pulitzer prize-winning musical "South Pacific" February 26 and 27 at 8 p.m. in Ann Arbor's Michigan Theatre. Tickets are available by phone order only at (313) 665-0038.

"South Pacific" is based on James Michener's novel "Tales of the South Pacific," a collection of short stories set during the Allied struggle for the South Sea Islands during World War II. It won the Pulitzer Prize and the Tony award for best musical in 1950. The score includes "Some Enchanted Evening," "Bali Ha'i," "Younger Than Springtime," and "I'm Gonna Wash That Man Right Out of My Hair."

Ralph Herbert will play Emile de Becque, a French planter who falls in love with the American naval nurse Nellie Forbush played by Julia Boxholm.

Herbert has sung and directed at most of this country's and Europe's great opera houses. He was a leading baritone at the Metropolitan Opera and starred on Broadway in "The Gypsy Lady" and "Rosalinda."

Boxholm has appeared with the Michigan Opera Theatre, the Los Palmas International Opera Festival and has been featured many times with Arbocoll Theatrics.

Russell B. Collins is the stage director. Carl Daehler will conduct the Ann Arbor Chamber Orchestra in playing Rodgers' award-winning score.

Fishing clinic is set for March 14

The Metro West Steelheaders will conduct their third annual Spring Fishing Clinic March 14 from noon to 5 p.m. at the Bailey Recreation Center, 36651 Ford Road, Westland.

Experts in such areas as salmon and steelhead fishing, fly fishing and drift boats will offer demonstrations and movies as part of the program. Some 25 exhibits will be featured along with a presentation by the Department of Natural Resources. Admission to the clinic is free of charge. Any questions regarding the show's exhibits can be directed to Harry Wilkinson at 326-7467.

Grand opening of a new entertainment spot is Saturday

It's not exactly your typical neighborhood bar. But yet it's not a lounge either. Nor a restaurant.

"We're a little bit of everything," explained Michael Scott, manager of the new Malarkey's Pub at 7020 Wayne Road in Westland. "Tell everybody to come in and see for themselves what we're all about."

And this Saturday would be a good time to do just that as Malarkey's Pub hosts its grand opening celebration starting at 8 p.m. The evening will feature dancing, various drink specials, caricatures of patrons and information on the upcoming St. Patrick's Day party.

Catering to a 25 to 55-year-old crowd, this newly redecorated pub is equipped for all occasions with a 20-seat bar area, dance floor and stereo jukebox, four computer video games, a six-foot television screen and a seating capacity of 160.

And let's not forget the specialties of the house—a one liter (34 ounces) mug of beer for $2 ($2.50 after 7 p.m.) and a half-pound chopped sirloin for $1.60. A Happy Hour special on all non-call drinks occurs daily from 4:30-6:30 p.m.

Combine such features with an annual calendar of some 22 events, ranging from a road rally to a Tiger baseball outing, and Malarkey's Pub aims for a broad base of appeal.

For diversified fun and games are just what owners Steve Kasapis and Jerry Carlan have ordered. Their business experience blends well for such a venture as Malarkey's Pub.

Kasapis, a veteran of 38 years in the restaurant business, knows the value of quality food to an establishment. His ownership of 17 Ram's Horn Restaurants attests to his proven track record.

Carlan, on the other hand, grew up in the bar business and is versed in areas dealing with pricing and providing a fun atmosphere.

"It's been a long time coming for a nice pub in Westland," remarked Kasapis last week. "We want people to have someplace nice to go to have a beer and relax."

Refreshments include five draft beers, various bottle beer, draft wine on tap for $1 ($1.25 after 7 p.m.) and a small but appetizing menu. In addition to the half-pound sirloin, diners will find a half-pound patty melt at $1.80; kielbasa sandwich, $1.50; grilled cheese, $1.25; stacked ham, $2.25; french fries, 80 cents, and onion rings, 90 cents.

Handling the day-to-day operations will be Scott, who has managed such hot spots as Uncle Sam's, Student Body and Magoo's.

"Anybody 25 and up can come here and meet a nice crowd of people," said Scott, originally from Buffalo. "It's the kind of place you can bring a date and dance and sit in one of our privacy booths."

"Or you can come in to see a sporting event on the large screen and play one of the games," he added. "On St. Patrick's day we're planning to bring in a live band to entertain."

Malarkey's is open from 11 a.m. to 2 a.m. Mondays thru Saturdays and from 2 p.m. to 2 a.m. on Sundays. Thursday night is ladies' night and proper attire is required at all times.

"To be successful in this business you need three things: cleanliness, a good product and good service," Carlan declared. "That's what we intend to give the people of Westland and the nearby communities."

As for the pub's name, Kasapis and Carlan are quick to point out that "Malarkey" has no ethnic origin, meaning it's open for everyone.

"Malarkey is slang for nonsense," Carlan noted. "I guess that makes us a 'Nonsense Pub'. When you think of such a place, you think that anything can happen there."

Making things happen will suit Malarkey's Pub just fine.

In reality what Act 213 of 1981 means is that the local assessed value shall be the same as the state equalized value or (50% of market value)

Merit "Easy Switch."

National Smoker Study confirms MERIT taste sparks switch from higher tar brands.

The bottom line: taste.

That's the result of the latest wave of research with smokers who have switched from higher tar cigarettes to 'Enriched Flavor,' MERIT.

MERIT Earns Taste Trophy.

Nationwide survey reveals over 90% of MERIT smokers who switched from higher tar are glad they did. In fact, 94% don't even miss their former brands.

Further Evidence: 9 out of 10 former higher tar smokers report MERIT an easy switch, that they didn't give up taste in switching, and that MERIT is the best-tasting low tar they've ever tried.

MERIT By Wide Margin.

In addition, extensive unmarked pack tests confirm that MERIT delivers a winning combination of taste and low tar when compared with higher tar leaders.

Confirmed: The overwhelming majority of smokers reported MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading higher tar brands.

Confirmed: When tar levels were revealed, 2 out of 3 chose the MERIT combination of low tar and good taste.

Year after year, in study after study, MERIT remains unbeaten. The proven taste alternative to higher tar smoking—is MERIT.

8 local wrestlers find gold at districts

25 area survivors will take aim for regional titles

Twenty area high school wrestlers will take aim at Class A regional honors and a chance to compete in the state finals. The 25 are survivors of last week's grueling district championships staged at Temperance Bedford.

The area teams came away from Bedford with eight gold medalists, an equal number of second place finishers and four bronzes. Six others just managed to make the cut by finishing in fourth place.

Temperance Bedford, always a tough team to divert from a wrestling title, compiled 182 points to come away with the district title, beating out three prominent area teams — Plymouth Salem (159½), Wayne Memorial (115½) and Westland John Glenn (107) for the top honors.

Wayne Memorial head coach Don Haney said today that he will file an official protest with the Michigan High School Athletic Association because of a ruling by tournament manager Joseph Kinnelly that eliminated senior Jim Nesbitt from the competition. A mixup caused the dispute and the ruling.

Salem came away from the tournament with three district champs in the Beaudoin brothers — Randy (155) and John (132), and also Bruce Bachman (138). Wayne's gold medalists included T. J. Harris (98) and Dan Matusch (119), while Westland John Glenn's Mike Parson captured the top prize for the 112-pound class. Belleville was represented in the winner's circle by heavyweight Guy Wood and Plymouth Canton had a winner in Steve Hamblin at 145.

The area reaped silver medals thanks to Glenn's Tom Gibson (98) and Don Forchione (155); Wayne's Paul Justice (105) and Joe Colaianni (132); and Salem's trio of Rob McDonald (126), Scott Wickens (185), and Marty Piper, (heavyweight).

Third place awards went to Darrell Reynolds (Glenn — 132); Joe Samples (Wayne — 138); Joe Wochuk (Salem — 167) and Melvin Richendollar (Belleville — 198).

Also qualifying for Saturday's regional tournament at Ann Arbor Huron High from this area by virtue of fourth place finishes: Todd Gattoni (Plymouth Canton — 98); Dave Stewart (Belleville — 119); Eric Waters (Romulus — 126); Robb Paciocco (Glenn — 138); Rick Glass (Wayne Memorial — 145) and Harry Walkey (Plymouth Salem — 198).

Coach Haney explained his version of the controversy that left Nesbitt, one of the top prep wrestlers in the state on the sidelines.

"We wanted Nesbitt to wrestle at 167," Haney explained, "and approached the Bedford athletic director (Kinnelly) who also was the designated (by the MHSAA) manager of the tournament and informed him of our plans. He (Kin-nelly) said Nesbitt was not going to be able to wrestle at that weight class because he was certified at 183. Haney's response was that Nesbitt also was certified at 167.

Haney said he immediately contacted MHSAA representatives by telephone and informed them of the situation and state officials asked to speak to the Bedford AD. The state advised the tournament manager to convene a grievance committee to iron out the issue but that the final decision was in the hands of the designated tournament manager.

While Kinnelly purportedly went to assemble his panel, Nesbitt weighed in at 167. Nesbitt has in his possession the regulation card designating him as a 167 pounder and he weighed in at that. However, a few minutes later the Bedford AD returned and said he wasn't going to take it to the grievance committee, and made the decision that Nesbitt would not wrestle at 167.

After Kinnelly made the announcement, Coach Haney said "fine, we'll wrestle him at 185." However, Kinnelly replied: "No, because you already weighed him in at 167.

Angered over the decision, Haney said that the "Catch 22" situation was a no win verdict for his wrestler and his team.

"Kinnelly played God and unfortunately our wrestler had to pay for this decision — believe me the state will hear from me," he said angrily.

One away from perfection

Boasting an untarnished 11-0 dual meet record and claiming the Division A Western Wayne Invitational Swimming & Diving Championships, Wayne Memorial's swimming team is one victory away from a perfect season. Only out-of-league rival Allen Park, whom they'll meet Thursday night at 7 p.m., can spoil coach Jim McPartlin's plans. The Zebras are also heavy favorites to win the Great Lakes 8 Conference title scheduled for March 4-5 at Monroe. Members of the team include: Ron Anthony (front row, from left), Ron Umfleet, Jim Hideb-

Wayne tankers near perfect

At least three records, including a 10-year-old mark, fell last week as undefeated Wayne Memorial buried Garden City West 111-56 in a non-conference swim meet.

Eric Head turned in a dazzling 1:05.5 to eclipse the old mark held by former All-Area swimmer, Paul Nichols in the 100-yard breaststroke. Nichols' record of 1:05.6 stood up for more than a decade.

In the victory, Wayne also tied the 200-yard medley relay record as Randy Ferguson, Head, Keith Brothers and Doug Craig were clocked in 1:43.3 in beating their teammates to the wire. Garden City finished third in the event.

West's Mark Devore, a double winner, broke the Wayne pool mark for the 200-yard freestyle as he churned a 1:48.4.

"This is the best team I've ever coached," said Wayne's Jim McPartlin whose swimmers are one-victory away from a perfect dual meet season. McPartlin has coached unbeaten Zebra clubs in 1977 and 1978, "but, these kids have even greater potential than those in the past," he stressed.

With the Western Wayne Swimming title and a 11-0 record behind them, the Zebras are shooting for the Great Lakes 8 Conference title and Allen Park. They'll meet the Parkers Thursday night at 7 p.m. for Seniors' Night, then travel to Monroe on March 4-5 for the conference confrontation.

Tigers turn frustrations on Allen Park, win, 89-64

Belleville left a season of frustrations behind it and turned in a sparkling 89-64 basketball victory over Allen Park to even its Suburban 8 Conference record at 4-4 Friday night.

Coach Tom Niemi's Tigers quickly put the Jaguars out of it and put to rest any rumors that they won't be ready for the Class A District Playoffs scheduled for March 8 at Ypsilanti High School.

With senior guard Reggie Grantham looking like an All-Pro, Belleville soared to a 22-9 lead over the hapless Jaguars who didn't figure to be in the game the rest of the evening. Grantham, one of the leading scorers in the area this season, connected on 12 field goals and made five of seven free throws for 29 points.

Grantham also received ample support from his teammates Sam Villa, Flum and Alexander who were also in double figures. Villa had 14 points, Flum chipped in 12, while Alexander finished the night with 11.

Niemi was able to play his entire bench as the Tigers built up a 50-26 lead at the intermission before going on and outscoring their rivals 17-16 and 23-21 for the final two periods.

Wayne puts on sad cage show

Just when Coach Dan Vasiloff thought his cagers had finally put the pieces together, Bentley and Wyandotte step in and shatter the image.

Wyandotte jolted Wayne 63-49 in a Great Lakes 8 Conference contest, a few days after out-of-league foe Livonia Bentley stunned the local quintet, 63-49.

"In each of those games there was one quarter that we came apart," the first year Wayne coach said, "and that's all the opposition needs. You can't play well for three quarters, then let loose the last eight minutes. No way."

That's just about what happened to the Zebras against Bentley who had difficulty shaking their non-conference rivals last week. Although the Bulldogs were up 16-11 after the first frame, they found Wayne within striking distance at the end of the next two quarters (29-24 and 44-38).

Then, the unexpected happened to Wayne. Hit with a rash of turnovers and unable to score after three consecutive trips downcourt, the Zebras surrendered to Bentley, a team that narrowly beat them the first time around.

Norman DeVoe and Jim Nibert accounted for more than half of Wayne's points. DeVoe sank eight of the 21 Zebra field goals and canned three of four free throws for a team high 19 points, while Nibert chipped in 10 points.

Wayne not only looked anemic from the field where they capitalized on a mere 21 of 61 shots, the Zebras also had their problems at the free throw line where they collected seven of 21 attempts.

Bentley's Eric Sinc led all scores with 20 points, hitting on 4-of-6 charities and eight from the field.

Wyandotte outscored their league rivals 20-8 in the second period to break up a 12-8 close game. Only Nibert, who had 12 points, managed to muscle his way in the two figure scoring column while Dennis Randazzo and Jim Wisbang sparked the Bruins with 18 and 16 points, respectively.

The losses left Wayne holding a 3-9 league and a 6-13 overall record.

Franklin clinches league cage crown

Taking no chances that the title it had coveted for more than a decade would slip away, Livonia Franklin erupted for 26 points in the second period and rallied to a 73-56 victory over arch-rival, Westland John Glenn and clinch the 1982 Northwest Suburban Conference basketball championship Friday night.

Although Franklin had captured the title in the mid-sixties under then coach Bob Visser, the championship was the first for coach Jim McIntyre.

McIntyre's Patriots will meet Garden City East Friday night in the league finale, but the outcome of that game will have little effect on the final standings.

Franklin struggled against Glenn the first eight minutes and it appeared that Glenn Coach Dan Henry would realize his goal to "upset one of the title contenders this year." Ahead 18-15 on the strength of Bob Hawley's exceptional play, the Westlanders couldn't stop the torrid scoring of 6-5 Franklin center

Bob Stebbens.

Stebbens, a junior, demolished the Rockets almost singlehandedly as he pumped in 14 of his game high 28 points in the second period to give the newly-crowned champs an overwhelming 41-26 lead at the half-way mark.

After intermission, Franklin and Glenn exchanged baskets on a near even basis. The Patriots had a 15-12 advantage for the third period and protected a 56-49 edge going into the last period without much sweat.

"Our kids tried to run with them," Coach Henry said. "And that's fatal. I tried three timeouts in an attempt to drive my points across to my players and it didn't help them a bit. Franklin is just too fast and too good a team to try to run with."

The loss dipped Glenn's record to 7-12 over-all and 3-6 in the league.

Earlier in the week Glenn annihilated a taller Livonia Churchill quintet by 20-points, 68-48, as Hawley tossed in 24 points.

Local Tartars

Former Wayne Memorial head track coach, Ernie Righetti, an ex-All-Area runner in his own right, has gathered around him several former notable preps from this area to compete for the Tartars at Wayne State. Righetti has enlisted the services of Ron Mason (above) who was a blue chip half-miler and miler, and ex-Dearborn Heights Robichaud sprinter Mark Woodson (at right) who earned all-state Class B recognition in the 100 and 220. Also heading for Wayne State is Rick Blaha, an All-state distance runner who prepped at Wayne High. Righetti also has his sights set on an all-weather track for Wayne State and to reach that goal Tartar alumni will have to raise approximately $100,000.

while the Tigers have an international contest scheduled for Tuesday when they will host one of the finest teams in Windsor as Lowe High comes to town. Belleville wraps up the regular season with league champ, Plymouth Salem. It will be the final meeting between the two teams as Salem is scheduled to leave the conference and join another league next fall.

In last Tuesday's matchup with Dearborn, Belleville fell apart in the last three minutes against the Pioneers and consequently sustained a 66-49 setback. At 3:42 in the final period, the game was tied at 49 all, then the Tigers suffered a cold spell that proved fatal.

Grantham wasted a super individual effort, scoring 26 points, while Villa counted 10.

'Dog gone'

Missed layup dooms Cherry Hill, 57-55

The closest thing to a "sure thing" in basketball is the under-the-basket, uncontested "layup shot." Or the "dog shot" as some oldtimers would call it.

And when you miss one, the layup can be called by a lot of other unmentionable names.

A last second missed layup was the difference in Cherry Hill's 57-55 setback Friday night at the hands of league-leading Melvindale which clinched a share of the 1982 Tri-River Conference championship.

"We had a chance to tie it with a 'puppie,'" said Cherry Hill coach Dave Bogataj, "and we missed it. But, let me say this for our kids, they played their best game of the season and I'm really proud of them."

It was close right down to the final buzzer. Melvindale shot to an 18-16 first period lead and remained out in front 37-33 after the initial half. The Cardinals kept their shaky lead thanks to John Pozcik's sharp-shooting. He accounted for 20 of Melvindale's points.

Melvindale appeared to be ready for the knockout punch late in the third period when the newly-crowned champs inflated their lead by as much as nine points, but a late

Spartan surge led by Johnny Green cut into the bulge and with three minutes left in the game Cherry Hill had erased the deficit and was up by one.

The Spartans' man-to-man defense neutralized most of the Melvindale offense with the exception of Rozcik who made baskets from all over the court. The 5-10 guard drilled in 10 field goals for 20 points.

Pozcik's scoring performance, however, was second to Green's who led all scorers with 22 points. Green was the only Spartan in double figures.

Cherry Hill could have won it at the free throw line where they had 21 chances and made only 11.

Coach Bogataj and the Spartans will wrap up the conference phase of the season Friday night when they travel to Dearborn Heights Riverside. They'll meet Romulus next Thursday in the regular season final, then prepare for the Class B District Playoffs scheduled for Dearborn Heights Robichaud on March 8.

2. In Memoriam

MY BROTHER JERRY is missed so terribly bad by me and his friends, Ronald (Butch) Watkins 3966 Richard St., Wayne. In loving memory of our cherished son, Robert E. Muchi who was taken from us for reasons we cannot understand, were heartless heartbreak once again on his birthday, March 2, and yet in days to come when we too, shall be called home to the unseen land, where bitter partings are no more, perhaps then we'll understand.
